Irish Revolt Causes British Cabinet Crisis

JEALOUS SUITOR KILLS 2

DEMAND BIRRELL RESIGN

Motion to Force Secretary for Ireland Out of Cabinet Is Introduced in the Commons

London, May 2—A motion demanding the resignation of Augustine Birrell, Secretary for Ireland, was introduced in Parliament this afternoon, but immediate consideration of the measure was prevented by other business before the House of Commons. Premier Asquith said he hoped to give an early opportunity for debate on the motion, which arises from charges that Birrell had not taken proper precautions to prevent the Dublin revolt, though fully forewarned.

By FRANK TEWSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 2.—Peace reigns once more in Ireland.

In the wake of the ill-starred uprising, however, there exists a political situation fraught with menace.

Parliament convened today with the Asquith government facing fresh attacks and in the face of this bitter criticism the way must be paved for further legislation on conscription.

Although Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, and John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, have promised not to make political capital out of the Irish rebellion, the uprising has had such powerful effect upon the public mind that its influnce will have strong bearing upon deliberations in Commons for some time.

The government finds itself with approximately one thousand rebel prisoners on its hands, including four of the leaders who have done most to incite civil war. They are Sir Roger Casement, Peter H. Pearse, the self-proclaimed provisional president of the republic of Ireland; James Connolly, commander-in-chief of the rebel forces, and Countess Markievicz.

Demands are pouring in upon the government that the severest possible punishment be dealt out to them. Some of the Tory newspapers insist the ringleaders in the Irish revolt be tried for treason.

Five Million British Are Now Under Arms

London, May 2.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that Great Britain's total military forces now exceed 5,000,000 men.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS.

London, May 2.—The Swedish steamer Friedland, a Belgian relief ship, has met with disaster and is sinking, according to an announcement issued by Lloyds. The Friedland recently sailed from the United States for European ports. It is a steamer of 4,907 tons, hailing from Gothenberg. The Brazilian steamer Rio Branco, 2,258 tons, and the British steamer Rochester City, 1239 tons, have also been sunk. One life was lost in the destruction of the Rochester City.

Salonica, May 2.—The Turkish transport Chirketi Hairie has been sunk off Rodosto in the sea of Marmora by a British submarine, it was announced here today. Hundreds of the Turkish soldiers on the ship are believed to have perished.

London, May 2.—Fifty Greek citizens taken by the Bulgars in the recent raid have been shot to death," says a Salonica dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

Marseilles, May 2.—The fourth contingent of Russian troops arrived here today. They were enthusiastically cheered when they disembarked and marched through the streets.

U. S. DEMANDS REFUSED BY BRITAIN

By International News Service.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—British embassy officials today announced that the British government has declined the request of the State Department that goods of German origin contracted before March 15, 1915, be permitted to pass the blockade lines.

The British Foreign Office ruled that only goods contracted for before March 1, 1915, would be permitted to come to America.

American merchants recently requested an extension to March 15, in order to bring to this country a great quantity of goods now held at Rotterdam.

A formal note from Great Britain containing the refusal is expected at the State Department soon.

ADMIRAL FISKE GIVES LIE TO DANIELS

By International News Service.

Washington, May 2.—The lie was directly charged today on the controversy of Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske and Secretary of the Navy Daniels over the alleged suppression of Fiske's letter of November 9, 1914, to Daniels, showing the weakness of the navy.

Secretary Daniels wrote to the Senate on April 21, answering charges that he had deliberately suppressed the Fiske report by declaring that he did not know of its existence until long after it had been prepared. Secretary Daniels said he was "greatly surprised" to learn of the existence of Fiske's report.

Today Admiral Fiske laid before the Senate a statement flatly contradicting Daniels' assertion and presenting evidence to show that he submitted the report to the Secretary immediately after he had completed it. He gave the names of officers who, he said, saw him hand the report to the Secretary.

Admiral Fiske's charges against Secretary Daniels, although they were not made public, produced a sensation in the Senate when their general nature became known.

The advisability of an investigation to determine the question of veracity between the admiral and the Secretary was discussed. Many Senators believed the long Daniels and Fiske wrangle, marked by Fiske's resignation as aide to operations, had reached such a critical stage as to seriously disrupt the Navy Department organization and to demand congressional action.

Meanwhile the Senate Naval Affairs Committee members were debating whether to recommend making the Fiske letter public. It is probable they will favor having it before the Senate within a few days, on account of the serious nature of Fiske's charges.

SUGGEST ALFONSO MEDIATE

German Reply Ready in a Rough Draft; and After a Revision Will Be Handed Ambassador

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, May 2.—It has been suggested in German political circles, says a dispatch from Berlin today, that King Alfonso of Spain be asked to arbitrate in the dispute which has arisen between the United States and Germany over the latter's submarine warfare.

By AUGUSTUS F. BEACH,
Staff Correspondent of International News Service.

Berlin, May 2.—The German reply to the Wilson note is ready in the form of a rough draft and only needs the finishing touches to make it ready to be handed to Ambassador Gerard.

The formal reply will be delivered about the middle of this week, probably not later than Thursday, according to the best information available. The contents of the note are being guarded carefully. The American situation is predominant in the official mind.

The newspapers comment on it only very briefly if at all. Less talk is heard than during last week.

The German attitude may be summed up in the statement that they are sure there will be no break unless President Wilson is determined that there shall be one.

It was officially announced here that the Emperor has bidden farewell to Ambassador Gerard upon the latter's departure for Berlin from German headquarters.

Arrangements were made today for a conference between Foreign Minister von Jagow and Ambassador Gerard as soon as the American envoy returns. The ambassador is expected to arrive this afternoon.

COMPROMISE ENDS PITTSBURGH STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2.—Pittsburgh's street car strike is settled. Thirty-one hundred carmen today voted almost unanimously to accept a compromise agreement recommended by their executive committee. The men returned to work immediately and cars will be operated on regular schedules during the rush hour to night.

The compromise is regarded as a clean victory for the men. The maximum wage is placed at 35 cents an hour for all but the 116 men employed on the Washington, Pa., and Beaver interurban lines. These men will receive 34 cents as the maximum.

Boston clearings, $72,803,684.

New York sub-treasury credit, $662,605.

New York clearings, $827,683,783.

The New York sub-treasury gained $2,888,000 from banks yesterday, making the gain $4,862,000 since Friday last.

Secretary Will Phone Orders to Warship at Sea

Washington, May 2.—For the first time in the history of the country the Secretary of the Navy, some time between 4 o'clock next Saturday afternoon and 5 o'clock the following Monday, will issue orders over the telephone to the commander of a warship far out at sea.

The Secretary's telephone will be connected with the wireless station at Arlington, and his voice will be flashed out through the air to the battleship.

During the same period the Navy Department will be in touch by wireless telephone with all of the navy stations on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The Navy Department, according to an announcement today by Secretary Daniels, will be placed on virtually a war footing for that period as a "preparedness test."

HOUSEKEEPER MAY KEEP PHONE BONDS

Two American Telephone bonds, one for $1,000 and the other for $100, which had been given Lilla A. Parker by Dr. Charles A. Fernald of the South End, by whom she was employed as housekeeper, may be retained by her, Judge Lawton decided in the Superior Court today. Mrs. Eleanor B. Fernald, widow and administratrix of the estate of Dr. Fernald, sued the housekeeper to secure the bonds, alleging unsoundness of mind on the part of her husband and also alleging undue influence.

Judge Lawton found the gift was valid and that no undue influence had been exerted by Miss Parker and that the doctor apparently was actuated in making the gift to prevent his wife from getting the bonds.

FUNERAL HORSES BOLT, DRIVER HURT

James A. Churchward, No. 30 Greenleaf place, Roxbury, driver of a hack, was thrown to the ground and the wheels passed over his body when the horses ran away during a funeral in St. Michael's Cemetery, Roslindale, today. The mourners were gathered about a grave when the horses bolted. Superintendent Peter Ampetomaso of the cemetery stopped the horses, and Churchward was sent to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

FINE PLUMBER FOR FAILURE TO PAY

A fine of $100 was imposed upon Charles F. Rolfe, a plumber with an office in Massachusetts avenue, in the Municipal Court today for failing to pay his employes. He appealed. David Finnegan of Hamilton street, Roxdville, claimed that $16.50 was due him; James Bannon of Beachmont claimed $27.50, while Wilfred Wilder of Ellen street, South Boston, claimed $6 in wages.

FAVOR BILL FOR G. A. R. MEMORIAL

Following a public hearing, the legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs today voted to report a bill to incorporate an association to construct a Grand Army memorial building in Boston. The incorporators included present and past commanders and members of the Grand Army posts, together with representatives of various allied societies.

MAN AND CHILD WANDER IN SWAMP

Northampton, May 2.—After wandering all night in a swamp, where they lost their way, William M. Smith, sixty-six, of Florence, and his granddaughter, Doris Bolter, seven, of Holyoke, today found their way to the home of Alfred Lafond in Loudville.

WAR SPIRIT BLAZES IN MEXICO

Scott and Funston Ordered to Refuse General Obregon's Ultimatum Without Qualification

Laredo, Tex., May 2.—The customs authorities were today ordered by Washington to hold up all shipments of war supplies consigned to Mexico until further orders.

By H. H. STANSBURY.

El Paso, May 2.—A crisis in the Mexican situation has been reached.

Instructions received from Washington by Major-Generals Hugh L. Scott and Frederick Funston authorize them to refuse without qualification the demand of Mexican Minister of War Obregon for the withdrawal of the punitive expedition.

At a conference with General Obregon, to be held today, he will be notified of the attitude of the United States. Unless the Mexican official recedes from the position taken at the conference, it is believed that negotiations for an amicable solution of the problem will end abruptly, and an open break with Mexico follow.

Six thousand Mexican troops have just left Torreon en route to Chihuahua. General Francisco Gonalez was in command. Mexican army officers in Juarez received this information.

The war spirit is reported to be blazing among the Mexican troops in the Torreon district since they learned that the United States had refused General Obregon's demand for the withdrawal of General Pershing's column.

PLAN TO DEFEND EL PASO.

As a result of rumors that in case of a break between the United States and Mexico, the Mexicans planned an immediate attack on El Paso, General Funston renewed urgent recommendations to the War Department for reinforcements from the National Guard. The number required was not known, but it was understood the forces in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona were mentioned as being available for immediate duty.

A message sent to General Obregon asking him to appoint an hour for an important conference had not been answered at an early hour today.

The information concerning the finality of the Washington dispatch to Scott comes from an authority which cannot be questioned.

That some idea of the decision from Washington had reached General Obregon was indicated by news of a large movement of Mexican troops northward from Torreon.

SUSPECT MEXICAN ATTACK.

The departure from Juarez of General Luis Guiterres and General Elias Calles, commanders of the Mexican forces South of Juarez, as the United States punitive expedition, gave rise to the belief that an attack by the Mexicans was being planned.

General Calles is in command of the Sonora forces, which have been gathering on the right flank of General Pershing's column for twenty days.

General Guiterres commands the troops in Chihuahua, which have barred the way southward from Parral.

Graphic Picture of Mexican Crisis By General Scott

By WALLACE S. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., May 2.—For the first time since his arrival here to negotiate with Minister of War Obregon, General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, today gave an opinion on the state of affairs existing between the United States and Mexico. He said:

"Dealing with a situation of this sort is like sitting among a collection of powder barrels with sparks flying in all directions."

FARMER SHOT IN PAWTUCKET BY STRANGER

Pawtucket, R. I., May 2.—John McCormick of No. 223 Walcott street was shot in the head today by a strange man who rushed out of the McCormick barn and fired point-blank at the owner, who was coming toward the barn steps.

McCormick fell with a deep furrow ploughed along his scalp. The assailant fled just as Miss Margaret McCormick, hearing the shot, ran to an upstairs window and looked out. Neither father nor daughter is able to give a description of the assailant beyond that he is a young man.

McCormick is a grocer, living over his store. The barn is in the rear of the combination store and dwelling.

The grocer came downstairs after dinner and started for the barn. He crossed the small yard and was nearly at the foot of a short flight of steps leading into the barn when the stranger ran out, pointing a revolver. Without even telling McCormick to stop the stranger fired, then ran.

Miss McCormick rushed out to her father's side, then telephoned to the police. McCormick was taken to the Blackstone Hospital. His condition is not serious.

Police Chief Charles E. Hill and Miss McCormick examined the barn. Nothing had been disturbed, so far as known. A squad of police is searching for the fugitive.

DRAFT BILL GOES IN TOMORROW

London, May 2.—The government's conscription bill will be introduced in Parliament tomorrow, Premier Asquith announced today. It will provide for immediate and general compulsory service. The great test of the present government will come with the introduction of this measure. It will meet with sharp opposition from many quarters and the result may be a disruption of the present cabinet.

THREE KILLED IN PITTSBURGH STRIKE CLASH

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2.—Three strikers were killed and seven wounded today when strikers tried to break into the plant of the Edgar Thompson Steel Company at Braddock. The men were fired upon by company guards.

DRAG RIVER FOR BODY OF CHILD

Attleboro, May 2.—The police today dragged Ten Mile River and a mill pond in Rehoboville for the body of three-year-old George Lussier, son of Napoleon Lussier, who disappeared from Hebronville yesterday.

TEACHER, FATHER, SLAIN

Posse Scours Woods for Man who Killed Farmer and Girl in Home at West Thompson, Ct., Today

West Thompson, Ct., May 2.—John Elliott, a farm hand, said to have been infuriated by jealousy, shot and killed Miss Sybil Pettin, a school teacher, and her father, G. A. Pettin, at the door of the young woman's room in the Pettin home at daybreak today.

The girl's body dropped across that of her father, and Elliott escaped to the woods, where he was pursued by Sheriff William N. Bates and a posse of citizens.

Mr. Pettin attempted to defend himself with a shotgun, but was unable to bring it into play in time.

Elliott, who is said to be feeble minded, is reported to have served a prison term in Rhode Island for murdering a young woman in a fit of jealous rage.

INFATUATED WITH GIRL.

Miss Pettin, who was twenty-six years old, taught school in Grosvenordale, driving back and forth each day. She kept her team in a barn owned by Mrs. Ann Cunningham, Elliott's employer in West Thompson, and according to Mrs. Bates, wife of the sheriff, the farmhand became infatuated with the teacher.

Mrs. Bates said that recently Elliott, who is forty-five years old, has made himself objectionable, and Miss Pettin avoided him. He then began to make threats, but because of the fact that he was considered feeble minded and harmless, no attention was paid to them.

Elliott is believed to have brooded over the matter, and to have begun to collect weapons. A satchel found today contained revolvers, knives and other weapons, together with dynamite cartridges, all of which are believed to have been his property.

FIRED ON FATHER.

Last night Elliott was seen loitering in the vicinity of the Pettin home, and apparently he slept there. About 5 o'clock today, Mr. Pettin arose and went to the woodshed for kindling. Elliott saw him, and opened fire through the woodshed door with a revolver.

He fired four shots, all of which missed their mark, and Mr. Pettin then fled to the kitchen.

Elliott ran to a window and, firing through it, hit the other man in the arm.

Mr. Pettin rushed up stairs and secured his shotgun, but his wife, frightened by the sound of the shots, threw herself about his neck and hindered him.

He had cocked but one barrel of the shotgun when Elliott appeared on the stairs just as Miss Pettin came out of her room.

Elliott's revolver, which he had reloaded, barked four times in rapid succession and father and daughter dropped to the floor, with the girl's body on top.

Three of the bullets had taken effect in her body and one in that of her father. Elliott then turned and fled.

WOMEN AMONG DEAD IN RUINS OF DUBLIN

son and that long terms of imprisonment be meted out to their armed followers.

On the other hand, anxiety exists in some quarters that harsh measures would incite to a higher pitch the feeling that has been roused in Ireland by the flame of war and bloodshed.

Whatever is done it is likely martial law will be retained in the zones of all Ireland until the principal leaders of the Sinn Feiners have been tried.

Bodies of Women in Ruins of Dublin

Dublin, May 2.—Many women were killed in the fighting between rebels and British troops in the streets of Dublin. The bodies of fourteen women have been discovered in the ruins of shell-shattered buildings. Normal conditions are being restored here, although the central part of the city is a mass of blackened ruins and the streets are scarred by artillery projectiles.

Thoroughfares throug the chief zones of fighting were opened on Monday for the first time, and there was a rush for souvenirs, some persons even tearing the clothing from the corpses of the dead as they were borne away for burial.

The havoc in the business district of the Irish capital is appalling. First reports were wholly inadequate in describing the desolation and destruction. Many bodies will lie beneath the ruins.

Instead of a few buildings being destroyed by fire, whole blocks were wiped out. Many streets are impassable for the mounds of wreckage which fill them.

LAST SNIPER SURRENDERS.

The last shot in the environs of Dublin was fired Monday morning by a lone sniper at Ball's bridge, on the outskirts of the city, who held his position in spite of the furious fusillades directed against his barricade by the loyal troops. Finally, when his ammunition was gone he tied a handkerchief to the bayonet of his rifle and raised it in token of surrender.

The authorities claim the revolt has completely collapsed. Dublin is officially declared safe, and other parts of Ireland are reported quiet.

The troops are not interfering with the populace except to keep pedestrians on the move. Throughout the night soldiers worked clearing away the wreckage of battle and removing dead bodies. Some of the corpses laid in the street since the day the fighting opened, Monday, April 24. It was a sickening sight.

Train service has been reopened between the Irish capital and Belfast. Sea service for passengers is being carried on between the Irish capital and Kingstown with British gunboats.

Great stores of provisions are being sent into the city for the relief of the hungry population. Red Cross workers have also been sent here to care for the wounded soldiers and Sinn Feiners. Hundreds of wounded are in the hospital and strict guard is being maintained to prevent the slightly wounded from escaping.

Practically all the armed rebels are now in the hands of the authorities. The last band to surrender was that at Enniscorthy.

Word was received here that small bands of Sinn Feiners in Galway and County Meath had laid down their arms.

John Healy, editor of the Irish Times, who was in this city throughout the fighting and published his paper during the stormy days, gives the following description of the uprising:

BRUTAL AND BLOODY.

"There must be no mistake about the uprising. It was brutal, bloody, savage business. It was marked by many cases of shocking and callous cruelty. Innocent civilians were butchered in cold blood. Unarmed policemen and soldiers were shot down. As the result of promiscuous looting and incendiarism one of the finest public buildings in Ireland and the most important commercial centre of Dublin are in ashes. The full toll of dead will never be known. It is no exaggeration to say that scores of harmless citizens perished. Many British soldiers fell in the execution of one of the most difficult and dangerous duties ever required of military men.

"The nation must see that, in return for the heavy cost, it receives at least a sure guarantee of righteous punishment for the offenders and a powerful government for Ireland in the future."

One of the Sinn Fein commanders in the postoffice was Sheehy Skeffington, who is reported to be been killed. He was dressed in a picturesque uniform of bright green with long top boots adorned with tassels.

Another Sinn Fein commander, Professor MacNeill of the National University, is a prisoner. On Sunday General Sir John Maxwell, the British commander, issued a proclamation to the people of Dublin saying he intended to blow up with dynamite the property in the affected region if necessary to clear it of snipers.

The residents were warned to leave, but the men were told they must carry white flags as they approached the sentries, and must not hold their hands in their pockets, for fear of having weapons concealed there.

The Earl of Denoughmore, commander in France of the British Red Cross, and former Under Secretary of War, who married the daughter of M. P. Grace of New York, was among the British officers wounded in the fighting in Ireland.

Rocky Mountain National—Estes Park Makes your Ideal Vacation Possible!

Visitors to Rocky Mountain National-Estes Park, Colorado, all say that the reality far exceeds their hopes and that the Park must be seen to be appreciated.

It consists of 100,000 pine-scented acres, the whole of which combines to offer you any kind of diversion that you may prefer.

There is golf and tennis for those who like the sports, and riding and motoring for others, and there is camping-out for those who want to "rough it." Two million native and rainbow trout are introduced into the streams each year, and scarcely a day's journey from the Park, is one of the wildest sections of the Rockies, abounding in deer, bear, mountain lions and wolves.

I would like to tell you about the side-trips, the mountains to scale, the canyons to explore, the unusual wild flowers, the hotel service, the cottage arrangement, the facilities for camping, and the day-light journey to and from the Park.

Drop in at the office and I can then tell you how much the trip you are planning will cost, and suggest many useful arrangements, or, if more convenient, send your address on a postal and I will answer by sending you our folder on Rocky Mountain National-Estes Park, containing excellent pictures, maps and reading matter.

WAR SUMMARY

French troops, according to an official claim from the French War Office, captured 500 yards of first line German trenches and took 100 prisoners in a sharp night attack on Teuton positions south-east of Fort Douamont, the operation being described as completely successful.

The German official statement reports, however, the complete repulse of a French attack south of Douamont and the Caillette woods after a fiercely contested combat, in which hand grenades were used.

The Paris statement, summarizing French operations west of the Meuse on the Verdun front, says that the French attacks of April 29 and 30 north of Dead Man's Hill netted 1,000 yards of German trenches.

There was heavy artillery firing through the night west of the Meuse.

A fourth contingent of Russian troops has arrived at Marseilles, with joyful welcome by the French.

Amsterdam reports a German political suggestion that King Alfonso of Spain be asked to arbitrate the submarine issue between the United States and Germany.

A summary of French aviation operations for April states that during that month Fencrh sky-fighters brought down thirty-one enemy aeroplanes and that six French planes were brought down by the Germans.

In the midst of his rejoicing over the capture of the beleaguered British force in Kut-el-Amara, with 10,000 men and much booty, the Turk will do well to keep an eye out against double Russian forces sweeping down from the northwest and the northeast. Russian Cossacks, driving down to Mesopotamia after the capture of Erzerum and Trebizond, have repulsed a Turkish force in the direction of Diarbekr. This is 400 miles northeast of Bagdad and within 75 miles of the Bagdad railway. The other Russian column, coming through Persia from the northeast, is reported as repulsing a big Turkish detachment in the direction of Bagdad. This column was last heard from at Khanikin, which is about 110 miles northeast of Bagdad on the Turco-Persian frontier, with the open Mesopotamian plain before it. London, learning of these Russian advances, is reported as picking up hope that the Turkish forces victorious along the Tigris may yet be nipped between the Slavs and the British force at the head of the Persian Gulf which was unable to relieve Kut-el-Amara.

FRENCH THRUST GERMANS BACK FROM VERDUN

London, May 2.—The War Office announced today that in an attack against the Germans north of Douaumont on the east bank of the Meuse, French troops had occupied 500 yards of the enemy's trenches and taken 100 prisoners.

This gain on Verdun's northeast front is the largest made in any of the recent French counter attacks.

In the offensive operations that the French launched on the west bank on the night of April 29 they succeeded in gaining a total of 1,000 yards of the German trenches in the vicinity of Dead Man's Hill.

The work of three days has thus netted the French more than a mile of German trenches. The initiative appears to have passed into the hands of the defenders of Verdun, the Germans being checked in every effort to press forward.

The official communique reports a continuance of artillery activity about Dead Man's Hill and Avocourt. If the Germans abandon their efforts to take Verdun they probably will continue their bombardment for many days.

FRENCH GAIN.

The text of the French official statement reads in part:

"West of the Meuse artillery activity was continued during the night from the region of Avocourt, as far as Le Mort Homme. Latest reports make it known that in the attacks made by us on April 29 and April 30, on the slopes north of Le Mort Homme, there fell into our hands enemy trenches on a front of about 1,000 yards and to a depth ranging from 300 to 600 yards.

"Yesterday evening our troops east of the Meuse made a sharp attack on the enemy's positions southeast of Fort Douaumont. In the course of this operation, which was completely successful, we occupied German trenches of the first line on a front of about 500 yards and took 100 prisoners.

ARTILLERY BUSY.

"There were some artillery squalls in the Woevre region."

The German official dealing with the Verdun operations says:

"In the sector of the Meuse River, the artillery duels have increased in violence. On the left bank of the Meuse there were only hand grenade combats between the advanced posts. Northeast of Avocourt, on Monday, Lieutenant Boelke shot down his fifteenth enemy aeroplane. The victory was achieved over Cote de Poivre.

"In an air fight over the Fort of St. Michele, First Lieutenant Von Althaus of the German aerial service, shot down his fifth enemy aeroplane.

"On the right bank of the Meuse, south of Douaumont and the Caillette woods, French attacks were repulsed by our troops after a struggle of several hours with hand grenades. The German positions were maintained completely.

"According to a delayed report of April 3, a French aeroplane was brought down in an air combat over the fortress of Chaume, west of Verdun, and another was shot to earth above the Forest of Thierville, south-west of Verdun."

ST. JOHNSBURY MAN KILLED AT FRONT

St. Johnsbury, May 2.—Corporal Trevor P. Jones, formerly a draftsman in the Fairbanks scale factory here, was killed in action in the trenches in France.

GERMANS TAKE BRITISH BY SURPRISE

By International News Service.

Berlin (via Sayville Wireless), May 2.—The capture of a British trench north of Loos by a strong German patrol was reported by the War Office today. In the sector of the Meuse (Verdun front) the artillery duels have increased in intensity. West of the Meuse there were hand grenade combats. East of the Meuse, the official report says, French attacks were repulsed.

Following is the text of the official statement dealing with the operation:

"West front—North of Loos during Monday night strong German patrols entered by surprise a British trench. Those of the occupants that did not flee were shot down."

The French official on this fighting reads:

"South of the Somme a surprise attack attempted against one of our small posts in the region of Dompierre was repulsed by our musketry.

"In Champagne we shelled revictualling convoys north of Navarin farm. In the Argonne a strong German reconnoitring party was dispersed north of Harazee."

Russia to Open Great Battle in Armenia

By International News Service.

Paris, May 2.

A GREAT battle is imminent in Armenia.

The Russians are determined to clear the path to Angora and eventually to the Golden Horn.

One hundred thousand Turks have been brought up to defend Erzengan, commanding the roads west, according to the Paris Journal correspondent at Tiflis. A conflict of a decisive character in which the Russians hope to smash Turkish resistance in Armenia is believed to be only a matter of hours.

AUSTRIANS THROW BACK ITALIANS.

Vienna (via Berlin), May 2.—Repulse of Italian attacks is reported in the official report issued by the Austrian War Office today. It says:

"In the Ademello district our troops repulsed the enemy attacks which were principally directed against Fargorida Pass. The Alpini troops suffered heavily."

BOAT BLOWN UP, WAS LIPTON'S YACHT ERIN

A London cable announced today that the British armed yacht Aegusa, which was sunk by striking a floating mine in the Mediterranean, with loss of six men, was none other than the Erin, the private yacht of Sir Thomas Lipton, which had been converted for armed patrol duty in the European war.

The news that the Erin has been sacrificed to the cause of war will be received with regret by yachting circles in general and by several Bostonians who have been entertained on the hospitable Lipton craft on both sides of the water.

The Erin was a steam yacht of 1,007 tons. It was about the last word in seagoing comfort. The fleet vessel made repeated trips to New York in connection with Sir Thomas' efforts to lift the America Cup in the international yacht races.

Sometimes Sir Thomas came on the Erin, sometimes by liner, with the Erin in charge of its sailing master. In either case, when the baronet arrived on this side he entertained lavishly on his yacht.

The last time the Erin was on this side was in August, 1914, when it arrived in New York Harbor with the last Lipton cup challenger, the Shamrock IV. The last challenger was built for the 1914 races, which were sidetracked by the war.

Rowley Small Loans Bill Wins Vote in House

The House of Representatives today, by a unanimous voice vote, passed the Rowley bill, which limits the interest and all paper charges on small loans to 3 per cent. a month.

Representative Charles F. Rowley of Brookline, in a vigorous arraignment of the small loans abuses, declared that poor borrowers are forced to pay interest rates and charges as high as 150 per cent.

"The evils of the system can never be abated by the mere issuance of regulations by a supervisor of small loans," declared Mr. Rowley. "The situation is discreditable to the State and can be controlled only by State law."

Representative Rowley said that the new Morris system of loaning, which is to be started by influential citizens to relieve the situation, can come within the scope of his bill.

FREIGHT STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH

Two hundred and fifty striking New Haven freighthandlers clashed with the police early today on Pier 4, Northern avenue, South Boston. The strikers refused to leave the wharf, but eventually were driven acros the bridge to Atlantic avenue. They dispersed and no arrests were made.

While only the freighthandlers on Pier 4 and Commonwealth Pier are now out, it was said a general strike of freighthandlers in the twelve freight-houses of the New Haven Railroad in South Boston was threatened.

URGE BOARD FOR SAFETY IN SCHOOLS

The appointment of a special recess committee of the Legislature to study the advisability of new laws to safeguard the lives of school children was recommended today by the Committee on Mercantile Affairs. The commission would consider whether the State should compel cities and towns to adopt a standard system of schoolhouse construction.

FIND BODY AFLOAT IN HARBOR TODAY

The badly decomposed body of a man was found today by the harbor police near Charlestown bridge. The dead man weighed 156 pounds, was 5 feet 10 inches tall. His clothing consisted of a gray sweater, black suit and laced shoes. The body is supposed to be one of the men from the schooner which blew up while loading gasoline three months ago, leaving two men unaccounted for.

FROTHINGHAM AIDS CLERKS' PAY BILL

Louis A. Frothingham, former Lieutenant-Governor, today headed a delegation of former legislators before the Committee on Public Service in favor of a bill to increase the salaries of Senate Clerk Henry D. Coolidge and House Clerk James W. Kimball from $3,500 to $4,500 a year.

FINED FOR CLASH ON DUBLIN RIOT

As the result of an altercation over the Dublin riots, Michael McLoughlin and Martin Nee appeared in the South Boston court today, and the former paid a fine of $35 for assault and battery.

MRS. HORTON BOUGHT WAITE DRUGS, SAYS WOMAN CONFIDANTE

New York, May 2.—The trial of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, on the charge of poisoning his rich father-in-law, John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, Mich., was today set for May 22 by Justice Hearn in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

After the date had been set the assistant district attorney asked that a special panel of 250 talesmen be called for the trial.

Waite was in court, but not silent throughout the proceedings.

New York, May 2.—Here is the first complete account of the story told to the District Attorney by Mrs. Dorothy von Palmenberg as to the part which her friend and confidante, Mrs. Margaret Horton, played in the John E. Peck poison tragedy.

Mrs. von Palmenberg and Mrs. Horton faced each other in the District Attorney's office and Mrs. Horton was confronted with the statements Mrs. von Palmenberg had made.

Under the urging of her friend, Mrs. Horton admitted that March 21 she purchased for Dr. Arthur Warren Waite the trional and sulphonal with which he attempted to end his life, but did not know for what he wanted them.

Mrs. Horton also admitted that Dr. Waite said he expected his wife's father, John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, to die soon and that his wife's own health indicated she could not live many months longer.

THAT "BABY STARE."

Mrs. Horton further admitted that she at one time had on her hands the package alleged to have contained the arsenic with which Peck was killed, but said she did not know at the time what was in it.

It was to Mrs. von Palmenberg that Mrs. Horton, "the woman of mystery," fled for counsel on the day she purchased the drugs for Dr. Waite. The women continued their friendship until ten days ago, when they broke.

Now they are reconciled. This is Mrs. von Palmenberg's story in full:

"I first met Margaret Horton late in April or early in May, 1914, when she and Mr. Horton came to live in William Collett's boarding house, No. 322 West One Hundred and Seventh street. They were then newly married.

"I was introduced at supper. At once I was strongly attracted to Margaret. A stronger, more charming and sweet woman I never knew. I was impressed particularly with the look of helpless innocence that is so characteristic of her. 'My baby stare,' she calls it, and often she has said to me, 'Dorothy, that baby stare is what got me over.'

"Mr. and Mrs. Horton had a room adjoining mine, on the ground floor.

"Mr. Horton was then interested in the De Forest Wireless Company—at least he so informed me.

IN NEED OF MONEY.

"I went to the country about the middle of May that year, but our friendship continued.

"In the early Fall of that year, 'Mack,' as I had grown used to call him, and Margaret went to No. 56 West Eleventh street to live. They took a small two-room apartment on the top floor in the rear and paid $50 a month rent for it.

"I frequently visited them there. They had some new furniture—not much—and 'Mack' informed me they were paying for it on the instalment plan.

"Straitened circumstances, would expressly accurately their mode of life at that time.

"I went to live at the McAlpin Hotel in the late Winter of 1915. Margaret and Mack came to see me frequently, almost every day. Mack was still with the DeForest Wireless Company and did not seem to be any more prosperous than he was at the Collett's. Margaret and I went out together frequently.

"It was at this time that I first became aware of Margaret's habit of looking at men with her 'baby stare,' I warned her against it. 'Margaret,' I said, 'you mustn't do that.' But she only laughed and said it was just good fun.

"Margaret was studying music at that time with Professor James Massell, but she was doing her own housework.

ACQUIRED PROSPERITY.

"I left the McAlpin in May, 1915, intending to go to the country, and went to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Horton for a few days. Margaret was getting ready to visit her sister in Missoula, Mont. And a hard time of it they were having to get enough money for her to take the trip. I gave her clothes and other things, and so did her cousin, Marie Dorn.

"After Margaret went away I did not see either her or Mack until Saturday, March 18, last, when I happened to meet Mack in a subway express train going uptown.

"Mack and I recognized each other and shook hands. He told me they were still living in No. 56 West Eleventh street, but had moved to a larger apartment. They invited me to call.

"I was then living in No. 105 West Seventy-second street.

"On Saturday evening, March 18, Mack called me on the telephone at my home and asked me if I would be at home. I said I would.

"They came up that evening about 5 or 10 o'clock, as I recall it. As they stepped out of the elevator I was struck with amazement at the change in the appearance of both of them. They looked strikingly prosperous. Mack was wearing what he called his 'motor togs,' an expensive leather lined overcoat and long leather gloves. Margaret was wearing a new street suit and white furs.

HAD MANY SECRETS TO TELL.

"Margaret drew me aside and whispered:

"'If Mack goes to Washington I'll be up Monday. I have lots to tell you. I'll come up Monday night and tell you all about it.'

"Monday evening, March 20, she telephoned to me that Mack had not gone to Washington after all, so she couldn't come up. 'I'll see you again,' she said, gayly. 'You know how busy I am with my studies. I'm simply studying all the time. We expect to go abroad.' Mack had told me on the Saturday night before that they were going abroad to do big things and to put through some big deals.

"On the afternoon of Tuesday, March 21, she came up to the house without telephoning me.

"She burst into my apartment when the maid opened the door and gave way to a fit of hysteria. I was frightened.

"'Margaret,' I implored, trying to calm her, 'what on earth is the matter?'

"'Oh, I can't tell you,' she replied. 'You wouldn't love me any more.'

"'Margaret,' I said, 'don't be afraid. Tell the truth. I am your friend and can help you.'

"It was many minutes before she was calm enough to talk coherently. I never saw any one so much upset. Finally she said:

"'Well, I will tell you, then. I have been meeting a man at the Plaza Hotel, a Dr. Arthur Warren Waite. We have been studying there together.'

"'I don't understand,' I said. 'There is nothing wrong about that.'

"'That isn't all,' she went on, still sobbing. 'We had to take a room there for our studies, and so we had to register as "Mr. and Mrs. A. Waiter." But oh, Dorothy! it was simply a platonic friendship. Now he tells me there are detectives after him, and he thinks his wife has had him followed. I'm so afraid Mack will find out.

"'Don't worry,' I told her, 'Mack need never know. Just call up Dr. Waite, have him come here and I will pretend that I was Mrs. Walters.'

"'No, no, no,' she cried. 'Don't telephone him. His wife is tapped. I mustn't call him. We have said good-bye forever.'

"She told me then, that she had parted with Dr. Waite that morning in the Hotel Plaza. He came into her classroom, she said, to tell her that detectives downstairs in a taxicab had been following him.

"He gave me this ring,' she said, showing me a handsome diamond ring on her hand, 'and told me to take it as a farewell present from him. I'm afraid to keep it. I'm going to give it to you.' She took the ring from her finger and gave it to me, saying, 'Here, keep this and wear it, or do what you like with it. It's yours. I don't need it. I can get all the jewelry I want from him.'

PROMISED HER GREAT RICHES.

"He has often offered me jewelry,' she told me. 'One time he laid $25,000 worth of unset diamonds in my lap and begged me to take them, but I always refused. At another time he slipped a beautiful ring on my finger and implored me to keep it there, but I refused.

"She told me he used to sit with his face buried in his hands and listen while she played and sang at the studio.

"After we had talked the whole thing over for some time she finally decided to let me call Dr. Waite on the telephone. That was about 5 o'clock.

"'Don't talk to him,' she said, 'just see if he answers and then let me talk to him. I just want to know if he is alive.'

MADE SURE HE WAS ALIVE.

"I called the private telephone number and a man's voice responded. I handed the receiver to Margaret. She said, 'Hello,' twice, and I distinctly heard the man's voice say 'hello.' Then she hung up the receiver and went into another fit of hysterics.

"The next morning between 9 and 10 o'clock she came up to the apartment unannounced. She was carrying a suit case marked 'A. W. W.'

"'This is his suit case,' she told me. 'I took it away from the Plaza last Saturday and hid it in the basement of the apartment house (No. 56 West Eleventh street).' The next morning I had Hattie, the maid, get it and bring it to me at the elevated station. Two detectives were watching us. I stepped back and ran cabs into the street, where I had a taxicab waiting for me. The detectives went with them.'

"We opened the suit case. The first thing we took out was a suit of man's clothes. 'That is Dr. Waite's,' she explained. 'He keeps a change of clothing at the studio, because he sometimes stayed there over night.'

"That was his wife's brush,' she explained. Next we took out a Chinese silk kimono of exactly the same shade as the pajamas. 'I used to make myself comfortable in the studio when he wasn't there,' Margaret said.

"On Monday or Tuesday of the next week Margaret came to my house again. She was greatly worried. Dr. Waite was then in Belleview, very ill. Margaret said she was afraid he was going to die. Finally she told me she had bought for him the drugs he had taken on the night before his arrest—sulphonal and trional—in packages of ten and showed me the slip of paper on which he had written out the names for her.

PURCHASED DRUGS.

She told me about it in this way:

"On the Tuesday morning, when Dr. Waite said goodby to her in the Berlitz School and told her detectives were outside watching for him, he asked her to go out and get some tablets for him while he waited. He wrote out the names sulphonal and trional on a scrap of paper and told her not to get all the tablets in one store, but to go to several stores so as not to arouse suspicion.

"'I won't take these unless I'm cornered,' she said he told her, and then gave her the ring and some money as he said goodby.

"It was then that Margaret began to admit things. She told me in greater detail how they had the studio fixed up with cut glass rose jars and silver bakes and vases and lace doilies and candlesticks; that they always kept Oriental incense burning; that he always had cut flowers after the motor in which he took her riding and that she sprinkled the flowers with Oriental perfume before leaving from the studio, that he had bought her a mauve kimono of Chinese silk to match his pajamas.

"She told me then that she had been to the Cornell laboratories several times with Dr. Waiter; that she had watched him inoculate rabbits with the germs of diseases; that she had seen the germs through the microscope in the laboratory—watched them wriggle,' as she expressed it—and that she had carried the packages containing them for him.

"'Why, I even held the package of arsenic,' she told me, 'but I did not know it until afterward.'

"She told me that on the day of the old man's death Waite called her on the telephone and said, 'Well, he's dead, and I won't be able to see you for a few days. I'm going to take his body to Detroit. I'll be back as quickly as I can.'"

PLANS TO SUE TO OBTAIN PAINTINGS

Former Attorney-General Swift announced in the Probate Court today he would bring suit against Mary C. Sears to recover paintings alleged to have been taken by her from the studio of the late Miss Mary Lizzie Macomber. The statement was made during the proving of the will in which Miss Macomber left a number of paintings to E. C. & M. M. Vose, art dealers, who notably disposed of her work. They had advanced the artist sums of money.

HEAR POLICEMEN DURING ABBOTT SUIT

Associates of the late Police Inspector Walter A. Abbott testified today as to his character and sobriety in the suit of Mrs. Teresa Rock of Hancock street to recover $1,700 which she says is due her for nursing the inspector during his last illness. Charles Abbott, a brother, said he never knew the inspector to be under the influence of liquor.

Show Girl Wife Divorces Belmont

Barber's Story Helps to Win Decree

By International News Service.

New York, May 2.—Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont, sat before Supreme Court Justice Clark and a jury and heard the evidence which resulted in a verdict in favor of his wife's divorce without putting in any defense.

IN PINK KIMONO.

Ethel Lorraine Belmont, the former show girl, who eloped to marry Belmont three years ago, appeared by her husband to the trial in order that he might be identified by her witnesses. In spite of the fact that he had shaved off his mustache, a barber from the Hotel Plaza had no trouble in pointing him out as the "R. L. Bloodgood" who engaged an apartment with "Bessie Bloodgood" in West Fifty-ninth street in 1914.

"Do you see Mr. Bloodgood here?" the barber was asked.

"There he is!" said the witness, pointing to Belmont.

"What was he wearing when you were called to his apartment to shave him?"

"A bath robe" said the witness.

"How was Mrs. Bloodgood clad?"

"In a kimono, a pink creation. I also massaged her and she paid the bill for both."

THERE WEEKS AT A TIME.

The barber said he was called to the apartment six times. "There was a bottle of champagne in the room" he said, "and Mr. and Mrs. Bloodgood drank from it and asked me to have a drink."

"How long was he in the apartment?"

"I have known him to be there for three weeks at a time," replied the witness.

An elevator boy said "Bessie Bloodgood" hired the apartment in October, 1914 and that "Mr. Raymond" called soon afterward. He continued his calls to May 1 last.

"He would stay there a week at a time" said the boy.

Mrs. Belmont separated from her husband soon after their marriage she obtained a decree of separation more than a year ago with $100 a month alimony.

HELP "MELTING POT" PALESTINE FUND

Many of the most influential Jewish women in Greater Boston are interested in the plan now being put through to secure a "melting pot" fund for the suffering Jewish men and children of Palestine. The movement is being conducted by members of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist organization of America, who urge that all persons contribute discarded jewels and trinkets, which will be melted and converted into money. Among those interested are Mrs. H. H. Rubenovitz, president of the local branch of the Hadassah; Mrs. Samuel Abelson, vice-president, and Miss Dora Lourie of No. 257 Beaver street, secretary, who will furnish information desired.

FIRE DAMAGES U. S. MOTOR LAUNCH

Fire caused by the backfiring of gasoline in the muffler of a motor launch attached to the United States submarine tender Bushnell, early today damaged the boat to the extent of $500, according to a police estimate.

2 SHOTS IN HENHOUSE DISPUTE

Standing at a window of her home in Vista street, Melrose, Mrs. Walter Higgins today fired two shots from a revolver in an attempt to prevent a number of neighbors from dragging her husband's henhouse from the middle of the road.

Disregarding her threat that the next shot would "get" someone, ex-Representative Andrew J. Burnett seized the reins of a team of horses attached to the henhouse, started them and they pulled the structure to one side of the road.

The occurrence, it is said, was the result of an attempt on the part of Mr. Higgins to force the city to repair what is known as the "old road," in Vista street.

HENHOUSE IN ROAD.

As the city did not repair the old road Mr. Higgins last Wednesday moved his henhouse into the middle of it, blocking the thoroughfare. It extended almost entirely across the road, and pedestrians were forced to make a detour, while vehicles could not pass at all.

Mayor Charles H. Adams and Fire Chief Joseph Edwards, with other city officials, learned of Higgins' action and visited him to demand an explanation.

BLOCKED LOAD OF HAY.

In the meantime Edward Stillman, who lives a short distance beyond Higgins, wanted to put a load of hay into his barn.

Mr. Stillman complained to his neighbors, with the result that early today a party of about twenty men assembled with a pair of horses, and marched down the road to the offending henhouse.

The horses were hitched on to the structure, and the young man driving was about to drive them the word to begin pulling, when Mrs. Higgins appeared in a window and fired two shots from a 22-caliber revolver.

She ordered the men away, and according to some of those present, said:

"If you don't go away the next shot will get one of you."

The driver of the horses promptly surrendered, but ex-Representative Burnett was made of sterner stuff. He took charge of the team and the henhouse moved slowly out of the street.

Bad Pavement Tips Wagon; 2 Horses Injured

A depression in the pavement of Haymarket square, opposite Stillman street, today was responsible for injuries to two horses owned by Chipman Brothers and a tieup of traffic which lasted half an hour.

The left fore wheel of the wagon driven by John Fitzgibbons dropped into the depression and the load of six heavy wooden trestles shot over on to the horses, pinning them to the ground.

The fire department was notified and an Elevated wrecking crew summoned. A score of men under the direction of Deputy Fire Chief Shallow worked frantically to lift the timbers.

When the horses were released they were taken to a veterinary, it being feared they had been injured internally.

Keep on Kissing, SaysDr.C.E.Page; Germ Idea Silly

"Keep on kissing, girls; don't be afraid of the germs."

This is the advice given by Dr. Charles E. Page, head of the Health School on Tremont street, after openly criticising the remarks of Dr. C. V. Chapin, the Providence health official, who, in his talk before the Harvard Medical School, put the ban on all kissing.

"We're getting germ crazy," said Dr. Page. "Now we have put the ban into kissing. Do you suppose all this commy rot about kissing will be heeded?

"Why should we frighten courting couples? I've been a physician a number of years, but I've spent all my time in rebutting testimony from physicians which is mere speculation and does more harm than good, and I can prove it."

FIVE PAY FOR BALL GAME IN STREET

Five young men paid fines of $1 each in the South Boston court today for playing baseball in the street. Four of them, Morris Lopato, Fred Fairweather, Manuel Oliveira and Myer Pannebaum, are employed in a factory on New street, and played ball during their lunch hour. The fifth was Edward Murphy, who violated an ordinance by playing ball on Sumner street.

HELD AS MASKED BURGLAR

Following the shooting of Miss Minnie Walsh and the attack and robbery of her sister Gertrude at their lodging house, No. 43 West Newton street, by masked burglars, the police today arrested William J. Muldoon, alias John F. Linehan, twenty, of No. 12 Linden Park street, Roxbury.

Muldoon was arraigned before Judge Murray charged with assaulting Minnie Walsh with intent to rob, assaulting and robbing Gertrude Walsh and the larceny of a $10 ring from the latter and with owning burglars' tools. He was held for the Grand Jury in $2,000.

Minnie Walsh's name was taken off the dangerous list at noon. The doctors say she will recover. There is a bullet in her head.

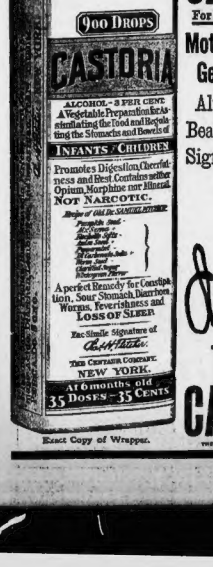

Muldoon was caught hiding in an upper room of the house hours after the sensational midnight holdup, was taken to the City Hospital and identified by Miss Minnie Walsh as the man who shot her.

Despite the fact the man was masked, Miss Walsh told the police she was positive Muldoon was the one who confronted her in the rear room when she heard her sister's screams and fired point blank at her with a revolver.

Neighbors and lodgers say a second burglar escaped. The police are searching for him. The robbery is one of the queerest the police of the South End have investigated. In spite of the darting of the two men all they obtained was a plain gold ring which one of them tore from the finger of Miss Gertrude Walsh.

DIVORCE FRAUD IS CHARGED BY WIFE

Alleging Jacob Shaffer got a divorce from her through fraud, Mrs. Gussie Shaffer, until a few weeks ago a resident of Taunton, has entered proceedings in the Suffolk County Court to cancel the decree. Mrs. Shaffer admits she was a petitioner for a divorce in Bristol County courts. They were married three years ago and lived separately, she in Taunton and her husband in Boston. Shaffer was granted the divorce on charges of cruel and abusive treatment. She preferred the same charges.

'THE DAWN' IS PLAYED AT COLONIAL

By FRED J. McISAAC.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"The Dawn," a new play in three acts, by George D. Parker, was presented by A. H. Woods, sponsor of many sensational dramas, at the Colonial Theatre, last evening.

The cast is unusually good. It includes Robert Edeson, Sarah McVicker, Helen Lowell and Forrest Robinson, and a new leading woman of rare charm and much talent, Kathlene MacDonell.

Miss MacDonell is the wife of the author of the play. So Robert Edeson informed us in a breezy little speech before the curtain at the end of the second act.

"The Dawn" is one of those plays in which plain, blunt language is used to describe things that are customarily handled with hyperbole. This causes many people to blush, and attracts many who would like to blush.

There occurs about five minutes of conversation between an old family physician and a too generous husband which really should have taken place in a private room somewhere.

To begin his play Mr. Parker employed the frayed and hoary device of letting a young girl, fresh from a convent learn that she had been born out of wedlock. This causes her lover to shy away, and gives Mr. Edeson, whose hair is now iron grey, but who has not otherwise changed since "Soldier of Fortune" days, a chance to come forward with an offer of marriage and the protection of his name.

The girl is restless after five months of this marriage, which is one only in name, and the physician, a role most delicately played by Forrest Robinson, urges the husband to consummate the marriage, whether the wife is willing or no.

Discovering his wife about to elope with her ex-lover the husband selects that moment to essay the "cave man," but the girl deftly escapes until the third act. Then she falls into his arms, confesses that she loved him all along, and the play ends with the customary tableau.

Miss MacDonell is personally very attractive. Her style suggests Billie Burke and so does her voice. She is a skillful ingenue and does her full share towards carrying her husband's play to success.

Mr. Edeson is the same suave, graceful actor we all know, although the part does not make any special demand upon his powers. Everett Butterfield did very well with a nasty part and Miss McVicker and Miss Lowell were admirable in character roles.

BOSTON THEATRE—Concert vaudeville, the new sensation which has created more discussion around town than anything ever before offered in Boston, together with Mme. Petrova in her newest picture play, "Playing with Fire," attracted two crowded audiences yesterday. A company of thirty people, including many pretty girls, appear in a magnificent stage setting as a background for four splendid high class vaudeville acts, including Jack and Phil Kaufmann, the chocolate dandies in tuneful originalities; Santley and Norton, the boys who sing their own songs; Cervo, the master of the accordion; and Hartmann and Varady, the sensational whirlwind Hungarian dancers, who were held over for a second week by request.

MYRA FILM IS FULL OF THRILLS

By HARLOW HARE.

"MYSTERIES OF MYRA"—Things that are supernatural produce a special kind of thrill and in the second episode of the "Mysteries of Myra," which were shown yesterday at the St. James, South End, Comique and other Boston theatres, events occur which are certainly beyond the normal.

Those who saw the first episode will remember that Myra was driven by the power of suggestion of thirteen evil minds to attempt suicide while walking in her sleep. She was saved by a young doctor, who loved her, and who was investigating the tragic deaths of her two sisters.

Myra's father had been a member of a secret order of Devil Worshippers and in dying had been so foolish as to leave his fortune to his daughters with a provision that should all three die it would go to the society. This is the motive which brings terrible danger upon Myra, the last of the three.

In the second episode we find the girl learning the sign of the Devil Worshippers, and developing mystic powers. In crystals she can conjure up pictures of persons and things, and these crystal reading scenes are a triumph of trick photography. We find the poor girl again endangered by a poison plant, and her lover brought within the power of the Devil Worshippers, who have determined to have his life.

Jean Sothern is winning friends fast as Myra, while Howard Esterbrook is the ideal of matinee girls and others in the role of the protector of the strangely imperilled Myra. The picture was made by the Whartons for the International Film Company, and it is the first release of this powerful organization.

GLOBE THEATRE—Ushering the merry month of May, Marcus Loew is offering a program of sterling excellence. The feature on the bill is Consul, a Simian actor, and his adopted daughter, Betty. Consul is the more serious worker of the two, while Betty is the comedy half of the act. Consul and Betty do a great number of tricks that humans take pride in exhibiting, but they go the civilized performer one or two better in several stunts. Old and young children in the audiences had a treat in this number of the program. Weber, Dolan and Frazer are a trio of Boston favorites who offer an act in which are blended song, wit and fun. Lawrence and Edwards furnish a delightful comedy skit, "At the Pension Office."

"THE UNWRITTEN LAW"—If pending negotiations materialize "The Unwritten Law," Edwin Milton Royle's stirring play, picturized into one of the greatest photoplays of the day, in seven pretentious parts, will be seen here at an early date. The piece lends itself admirably to picturization, and, if anything, is far more gripping and dramatically intense in its present form than it was in stage garb.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—The show for the first half of the week was suspended last evening to make way for the annual Dorchester Club benefit. The regular show was given in the afternoon, and delighted one of the biggest matinee crowds seen in the house for a long time. The photoplay entitled "Her Great Price," with Miss Mabel Taliaferro in the principal role, was loudly applauded, and every one of the vaudeville acts was well received. The latest episode of "The Iron Claw" was shown, and the current edition of news pictures. There will be an entire change of program commencing Thursday, when the first episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" will be shown.

Plays That Remain

SHUBERT THEATRE—"The World of Pleasure" begins its last week. This big entertainment with its galaxy of stars is one of the most popular Winter Garden shows that has ever visited Boston.

HOLLIS ST. THEATRE—Maude Adams entered upon her second and last week in "The Little Minister" and "Peter Pan." The little star has never been more popular than at this engagement, and the Barrie plays never better appreciated.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—"The Princess Pat," Victor Herbert's merry operetta, continues to draw big audiences. It is pronounced to be one of the brightest pieces of the season.

WILBUR THEATRE—Louis Mann in "The Bubble," the most entertaining comedy in which the celebrated dialect comedian has ever starred, continues until the end of this week only.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—This is the last week of May Irwin in "33 Washington Square," one of the funniest farces in which this exceptionally funny woman has been seen.

JOHN CRAIG APPEARS IN "HAMLET"

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—An exceptionally fine portrayal of "Hamlet" opened the second week of the Shakespearean festival of the Craig Players. Last week two of the Bard of Avon's plays were rendered by the company, and this week "Hamlet" and the "Taming of the Shrew" will be presented. Last night saw the theatre packed for the opening of the tragedy, which was well played by the stock company.

John Craig played the part of Hamlet, with Mary Young as the beautiful Ophelia. Donald Meek, who played the role of Polonius and also that of the grave digger, came in for his full share of appreciation from the audience.

Harry J. Doermann, as Claudias, King of Denmark, and Mrs. Vida Croly Sidney, as the Queen, also did their parts well. Theodore Friebus, as Laertes, and Bert Young as Horatio, came in for their share of applause.

MAJESTIC—"The Only Girl" again took Boston by storm last night and from all indications the show promises to repeat its early season success.

"The Only Girl" was adapted from Frank Mandel's comedy, "Our Wives." The book is by Henry Blossom and the music by Victor Herbert.

Mr. Blossom took a merry play seen in New York a few years ago, garnished it with some of the cleverest lyrics heard on the musical comedy and—then he did no more. That was enough. He did not mar the comedy, as many of our librettists do.

Mr. Herbert afterward completed one of the happiest pieces of collaboration on record. It is a well-nigh perfect musical play, jolly, bright, larded with charming songs and with just enough of the spice of romance in it. Long runs were inevitable; otherwise something would have been wrong with the playgoing public.

John Park has taken Thurston Hall's place as leading man of the company. Wilda Bennett is still the dainty and delightful prima donna of the company. Vivian Wessell, Louise Kelley, Olga Roller, Leona Stephens, John Findlay, Ernest Torrence, Jed Prouty, Richard Bartlett and a stylish bevy of show girls fill out an admirable ensemble.

FENWAY THEATRE—"The Eternal Grind," in which Mary Pickford is the star, is the feature photo-drama for the first half of this week. It is, if possible, even more powerful than any photo-play in which Mary Pickford has ever appeared and gives the star the greatest opportunity of her film career. It seems almost unbelievable that a great star can go on eclipsing her previous performances upon the screen time after time, but critics seem to agree that Mary Pickford succeeds in doing so. In her present vehicle, "Little" Mary is a very mature young lady, prematurely ripened by hard work. Her indomitable will, fearlessness and forceful personality compels admiration as well as sympathy. It is this new note of power which she strikes in coping with the great crisis which she faces that will win for "The Eternal Grind" the verdict of "the greatest she has ever done." A film showing the life and training in the United States Navy was well received and is timely.

LOEW'S ST. JAMES—Vaudeville of the all-star variety is the program the first half of this week. There are six vaudeville numbers, each of such excellence that it would be hard to choose the leader. One of the daintiest of high class singing acts is that of Hendricks and Padula, who sang and offered a pianologue. Tom and Stasia Moore present a most happy satire in their comedy, "My Dream Girl," and for the comedy playlet of the program, "Anybody's Husband," was productive of many a hearty laugh. Marvel, the dancer, was one of the hits of the bill, and Prince and Deerie offered a new collection of songs and fun sayings, a pair of dashing dandies of the colored persuasion. "The Mysteries of Myra," in the number two installment, were given; this theatre showing the feature in its first run.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Chief on the excellent vaudeville bill provided by Marcus Loew yesterday is a juvenile company of singers and dancers that give a most pretentious offering, which they call "The Follies, Jr., of 1916," patterned in some measure after the style established by the more mature organization, with which the name of "Follies" is connected. Sharing the bill with them for the first half of the week are seven other excellent acts, among which are included a dainty little star, Dorothy Herman, who sings a group of exclusive songs and dresses in a manner to thrill any feminine heart.

EVA TANGUAY AS POPULAR AS EVER

KEITH'S—Eva Tanguay is the topliner at Keith's this week. She is as alluring as ever, and she has brought along some bewildering gowns of her own creation.

As a finale, to please her audiences, Eva sings "I Don't Care," the song that helped make her famous, although the truth of the matter is that it was no song or group of songs nor any costumes that brought Miss Tanguay fame. It was her inimitable vivacity and abandon, that gripping personality that seems contagious and which drives dull care away.

Just to mention her name is enough to insure sparkle and animation and a rollicking time. She has new songs and a veritable Spring show of feminine finery, and her act has the old-time punch.

Charles E. Evans, whose success in "A Parlor Match" needs no comment, is as funny as ever in a skit entitled "A Forgotten Combination." He is ably assisted by Miss Helena Phillips.

Truly Shattuck and Marta Golden in "Musical Comedy Moments" furnish a high class comedy and musical feature. Comfort and King, two old-time negro minstrels; Grace Carlisle and Jules Romer in a musical skit, the Musical Johnsons, the De Long Sisters, the Six Tumbling Demons and the up-to-the-minute films of the Hearst Vitagraph News Pictorial make up an entertainment that sends you away satisfied.

MODERN THEATRE—The double program of first-run features shown for the initial presentation in Boston yesterday and to continue for the entire week was a most excellent one, having as leading players two female stars. William Fox presented Virginia Pearson in a drama that has as its central theme a series of chapters in the life of a woman, "Blazing Love." The story is that of a young woman who is engaged to a young Arctic explorer prior to his start for the frozen North, he being accompanied by another man who is smitten with the young woman. Six months later the companion returns and informs her that her fiance is dead. Yielding to the urging of her father, she marries this man. Follow ten years of uneventful married life, in which she develops into a fashionable society woman. Eventually she learns that her husband killed her former fiance, and in the loss of her regard for him she falls in love with a younger man.

PARK THEATRE—Dustin Farnum is featured in one of the leading attractions this week in the famous play, "David Garrick. Another feature on the program is Whittier's most famous poem, "Barbara Freitchie," with Mary Miles Minter in the leading role, supported by the oldest living actress, Mrs. Thomas W. Whiffen, and is a beautifully told story, and a romantic drama of the Civil War days. Signor Alberini, on his return appearance, met a great reception. Miss Ruth Goodwin was well appreciated in her carefully selected pieces.

GAIETY SHOW DRAWS BIG CROWD

GAIETY THEATRE—Max Spiegel's newest and what is said to be his greatest attraction, "The Merry Rounders," returned to Boston yesterday for a week's stay and presented before a house full, a two-act offering in ten scenes entitled, "This Is the Life."

This is the show that created the biggest kind of a burlesque sensation when it played here early last September and has caused more comment than anything of its kind in years.

Abe Reynolds, as Jacob Rosenbloom, is a comedian, first, last and all the time. George F. Hayes, a "rube" comedian, is playing opposite Reynolds and excels in the rube line as Reynolds does in the other.

May Latham, the leading woman, scored the hit of the night. She has beauty and sings well and her gowns are many and beautiful.

Jack McGowan, who made his first appearance in burlesque with the Watson Sisters' company last season, is straight man with the company and in his song offering in the second act scored a decided hit.

Zella Clayton and Ursa McGowan help to keep the fun going and in keeping with the rest of the females, display some stunning costumes. Miss McGowan is a newcomer in burlesque and a sister of Jack. She is wonderfully pretty, and with a girlish simplicity that is winning. She has a sweet voice too, and her grace is another attribute which assures her a successful stage career.

All choruses are said to be beautiful. Here is one that is and it is found that talent abounds as much as beauty.

WALDRON'S CASINO—This week Max Spiegel's "Strolling Players" are holding forth, and it is one of the best shows of the season. A two-act comedy entitled "In and Out," is the vehicle in which Billy Mossey, a character comedian, and his assistants are given an opportunity to display their talents. From the opening curtain to the finale, there is a rapid succession of screamingly funny situations, portraying the experiences of three benedicts on pleasure bent when their wives believe they are away on a business trip. Many complications arise, and one is carried from Brighton Bach to Blackwell's Island and finally to a young ladies seminary, where, as usual, everything ends well for all concerned. As first assistant to Mossey, a tall, elongated comedian by the name of Harry Crawford is also in the running as a laugh producer.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The double program this week is headed by a magnificent five-part adaptation of the famous comedy "The Wizard of Oz," which will be remembered as Montgomery and Stone's success of stageland. The tin woodman, the acrobatic mule, the scarecrow are just as uproariously funny in the movie production, and love, adventure, mystifying sensations, humorous surprise and deliciously clean comedy are present in every scene in generous measure. The second feature is Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield" in seven parts.

GENTLE RUBBING ALWAYS HELPS VARICOSE VEINS

Says Swollen Veins are Dangerous and Ofttimes Burst Which Causes Much Suffering.

Rubbing the swollen veins nightly for about two minutes with a gentle upward stroke brings benefit to sufferers and is mighty good advice, says an authority.

After the rubbing, which should always be toward the heart, because the blood in the veins flows that way, apply Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) with brush or hand.

Try this simple home treatment for a few days and improvement will be noticed, then continue until veins are reduced to normal. It is very concentrated and penetrating and can be obtained at any modern drug store. It is so powerful that it also reduces Goitre and Wens. All good druggists have Emerald Oil in the original bottle and the demand is astonishing.—Advertisement.

Women Get Relief

It is unnecessary for you to suffer with neuralgia or pains in the face and head. Women folks as well as men are now using Minard's Liniment to relieve pain instantly. This time tried physician's prescription is all that is ever needed to give quick relief. It is a wonderfully soothing, creamy liniment that does not stain or blister and is positively pure, clean and easy to use. Ask your druggist or your neighbor, for Minard's has been used in many homes for more than sixty years as the one dependable liniment for pain of all kinds.—Advertisement.

Charming Jean Sothern

Hundreds of talented motion picture stars sought the honor that has come to this slip of a girl, Jean Sothern, whose unforgettable charm is the winsomeness of lovely girlhood.

Her eyes are eloquent and mirror every passing thought or fancy. Their wondrous capacity for wordless speech is what made her, almost overnight, one of the greatest discoveries in motion picture history.

She has a remarkable capacity for making her audience share her emotion. See her in "The Mysteries of Myra," now showing at the best motion picture houses.

The Semi-Indirect Light

A light especially adapted for general illumination in living and dining rooms. Part of the light is reflected from the ceiling and part is transmitted through the shaded globe. The burner is entirely concealed. The result is a very even distribution of light.

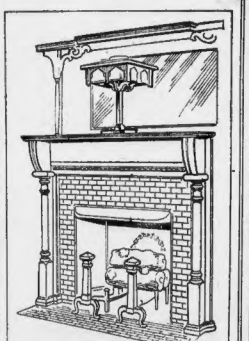

The New C. E-Z Light

The three small mantles are put on "soft" —Can be installed on gas or gas and electric fixtures as usually found, thus utilizing the present globes. The light produced is very pleasing and restful to the eyes and may be easily turned on and off by the pull-chain pilot self-lighting device.

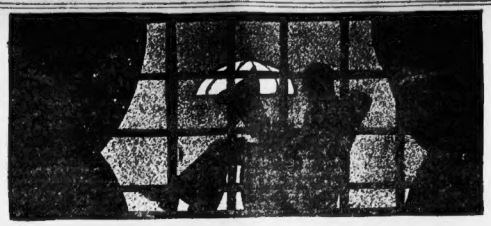

Some examples of fixture designs. Our Appliance Stores have many varieties which we invite you to inspect.

The Gas Log enables you to enjoy the full advantages of the open fireplace. Heat may be obtained and discontinued at will, while a wood fire, because of its dirt and inconvenience, is often not used, especially when heat is desired for only a short time.

USE GAS THE MODERN FUEL

USE GAS THE MODERN FUEL

The Supremacy of Gas Service

The Gas Companies listed below are joining in a series of advertisements for the purpose of bringing to the attention of their customers and prospective customers, the Supremacy of Gas Service.

We all believe that if the advantages of gas are only realized by all persons, as they are now by many, not only will the use and sale of gas be increased, but something will be added to the joy of living.

We know that gas in itself is of no value to our customers except as it may be made useful through some medium such as a Burner, a Range, a Water Heater, or some other appliance.

We also know that the gas business is not really a monopoly in the sense usually conveyed by that term. We know that cooking can be done by coal; we know that lighting can be supplied by oil and electricity; and we know that heat can be produced by other fuels.

We know that we cannot expect you to use gas for these purposes just because there is only one Gas Company in your city; but rather that we must, like any other merchant, convince you that our product is the best to use to secure the desired results.

Consequently, it is our purpose to explain to you the use, and to suggest the purchase, of such gas appliances as will meet your need.

In this connection we desire to remind you that the Appliance Stores conducted in connection with the Gas Companies listed below are headquarters for the best appliances for the use of gas, and to urge that if any information is desired regarding gas appliances, the managers of these stores be consulted.

Our aim is to provide the most satisfactory and efficient service possible. We realize that the good opinion of our customers is our most valuable asset, but we also realize that this good will must be deserved before it can be won. We therefore earnestly request that you advise us if there is any fault in our service so that we may hasten to correct it.

Each of the Companies below maintains a personal service bureau, a corps of men who will go to your home, analyze your lighting and heating problems, show you how to save money cooking with gas, demonstrate the numerous labor and money-saving devices, teach you how to get maximum gas efficiency. All the expert knowledge which we possess about how to use gas economically is at your command. This service is free. It is yours for the asking.

Other Features of Gas Service

GAS COOKING

Cleaner, more convenient and more economical, and gives better results than any other method.

The All-Gas Kitchen

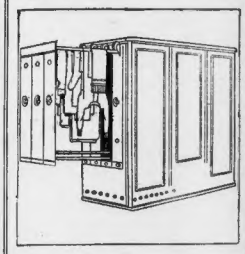

THE GAS RANGE
Compact, convenient, economical.
THE GAS WATER HEATER
Instant hot water, day or night.
THE GAS STEAM RADIATOR
To heat kitchen if not otherwise heated.
THE GAS IRON
Self-heated to maintain an even temperature all the time.

The Tank Heater attached to ordinary house boiler heats the water from the top, so that a small supply of hot water is secured quickly.
The Automatic Instantaneous Heater heats the water instantly, upon the opening of any hot water faucet in the house and the supply continues unlimited.

The Gas Steam Radiator gives steam heat with Gas for fuel. The heater is self-regulating to the lowest possible gas consumption, and combines with this advantage, freedom from dirt, ashes and odor.
The "Hotspot" reflector heater radiates heat low in the room, where it is most needed and thence rises naturally, warming the rest of the room.

There Are a Thousand Uses for Gas

The Clothes Dryer shown above will be found very convenient where the facilities for outdoor drying are inadequate or where it is desirable to have the clothes dried on schedule independent of the outside weather conditions.
Another very satisfactory appliance is the Garage Heater for private garages—safe and not expensive to operate.
We also recommend the Gas Iron for use in the laundry. It has a self contained burner which keeps the iron continuously heated to an even temperature.
Other domestic appliances are: Gas Mangles, Special Laundry Iron Heaters and Stoves, Wash Boilers, Warming Ovens, Garbage Incinerators, Toasters, Nursery Burners.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, there having been no material improvement after the early decline. Late in the second hour the volume of trading decreased.

Declines at 12 o'clock included American ⅝, Butte & Superior 1, Anaconda 1¾, Tennessee Copper 1⅝, Utah Copper ½, Inspiration ⅞, Kennecott ⅛, Chino ¼, U. S. Steel 1, American Can ¾, Car & Foundry 1⅝, American Locomotive 1½, Baldwin 2⅛, Crucible 2, Distillers 1⅝, Maxwell 1¼, Studebaker 2, Mexican Petroleum 4, Marine preferred ⅞, Westinghouse ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅜, Reading 1⅝, Lehigh Valley 1⅝, Erie ⅜, Baltimore & Ohio 1 and Union Pacific ⅞.

Among gains were Industrial Alcohol ½, Northern Pacific ¼, New Haven ½ and New York Central ⅝.

The Boston market was also weak, but not active. Noon declines here included Gulf common ¼, preferred ¼, Butte & Superior 1⅛, American Zinc 1⅛, Calumet & Arizona ⅞, Copper Range ½, Old Dominion ½, North Butte ¼, Quincy 1, U. S. Smelting 1⅛ and New Haven ⅛.

United Shoe common was up ⅝, while United Fruit was unchanged.

Prices were irregular in New York at the opening with the range ruling narrow. Among issues to show a point or more gain were Marine preferred and Studebaker. Distillers was off a point. Marine preferred was among the most active issues. Others were Baldwin, Mexican Petroleum and Reading. About all the trading was by the professional element. More stocks were for sale and the market did not have an extensive covering movement for initial support as was the case yesterday. A disposition to take profits indicated that professional opinion was to the effect that a halt in the upward movement is due. Within a few minutes the price tendency was downward. The market, hesitant at the outset, grew active on the decline. Losses ranged from fractions to several points. Nothing had happened to change the status of international affairs. Speculators and observers are awaiting the German reply. The foreign situation as it relates to Mexico is just the same. There was not much demand for standard stocks early today. Specialties were again the leaders. Business reports continue to reflect great national prosperity, but the question of its permanency makes merchants and manufacturers hesitate. This caution is reflected by avoidance of the stock market by the public.

In the Boston market, which began quiet and irregular, United Shoe was the feature. It was started with a fractional gain and advanced further. It was active. Coppers were dull and there was little buying of zincs. It was some time before Butte & Superior appeared on the tape. American Zinc started lower. The local market was narrow in every way.

Allen's Foot-Ease for the Troops

Many war zone hospitals have ordered Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder, for use among the troops. Shaken into the shoes and used in the foot-bath, Allen's Foot-Ease gives rest and comfort, takes the friction from the shoe, and prevents the feet getting tired or foot-sore. Drug and Department Stores everywhere sell it, 25c. Don't accept any substitute. Try it to-day.

FOR MONTHS LIVED ON STRICT DIET

Revere Beach Lady Relates How Plant Juice Cured Her of Bad Case of Stomach Trouble.

Not a day passes but what statements are received, speaking of the great benefit derived from the new herbal stomach remedy, Plant Juice. Probably no other discovery in the world of medicine has ever attracted the attention that this one has.

Every testimonial speaks for itself, and between the lines one can read the great thankfulness for relief from long-standing stomach, liver and kidney trouble.

An extraordinary statement was recently made by Mrs. George Delano, who resides at No. 534 Beach avenue, Revere Beach, a well known and popular Boston lady who has lived in this city for the past fifteen years and has hosts of friends here. She said:

"For ten years I have suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia and everything I ate would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form there. I was very nervous and could scarcely ever get any sleep at night; had headaches, dizzy spells, my liver was torpid and sluggish and I was bothered a great deal with my kidneys. My stomach was in such a weak condition that I could not even keep a glass of water on it. I felt as if I had a lump of lead in the pit of my stomach, and I was so bloated with gas that I could hardly get my clothes on. For months I lived on nothing but crackers and milk and was in such a weak condition that I was not able to do my housework. All the medicines I had taken failed to give me any relief, and when a friend advised me to try Plant Juice, I was very doubtful indeed of it helping me. However, I began to take it and to my great surprise felt relief after the first few doses. I have now taken four bottles and it has entirely cured me. I can eat anything, sleep well and am able to do my housework again. I certainly am glad to recommend Plant Juice."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get about two ounces of plain powdered neroxin from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The powdered neroxin and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

ACUTE AND CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schultze expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that anti-kamnia tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headaches, neuralgias and all ... Ask for A-K Tablets.

OLDEST GRADUATE OF YALE IS DEAD

Springfield, Mass., May 2.—Dr. David Fisher Atwater, Yale's oldest graduate, died in his home in this city today of old age. He was ninety-eight last October. Dr. Atwater was born in North Branford, Ct., October 29, 1817, and was graduated from Yale College in 1839, and from Yale Medical School in 1840. He leaves two children, Mary E., and Charles B. Atwater, both of this city.

KATZMANN TO GIVE TALK TO KNIGHTS

Assistant District Attorney Katzmann of Norfolk County will give a talk tonight to the members and friends of Dedham Council, No. 234, Knights of Columbus, at its banquet in Greenleaf Hall, Dedham.

Mrs. Storrow Hits Pale Pie and 'Sinkers'

The "pale-colored pie and soggy doughnuts" of country cooks were criticised by Mrs. James J. Storrow today in talking to women of the Special Aid Society at No. 601 Boylston street. She also advised the women to try physical training instead of fashions "to make over our shapes." She said in part:

"There ought to be compulsory physical education. There should be more attention to what physical education would accomplish in making over our shapes instead of following the latest fashions.

"Our evenings should be spent in talking over such preparedness as the cooking of proper food in times of emergency, helping to administer to the wants of children and knowing exactly what to do in critical moments.

"These country cooks, with their pale-colored pie and soggy doughnuts, with windows shut and little or no fresh air, ought to be told better things.

"We need just the same advice in the Back Bay as they do in the South End. We ought to set the example."

WRECKED AUTO WAS STOLEN, SAY POLICE

An automobile owned by Mrs. Elsie D. Cheney of No. 1726 Commonwealth avenue was found wrecked in front of No. 66 Warren street, Brighton, early today. It had been in a collision with a telegraph pole. Clinton G. Crowley, twenty-two, of No. 27 Parson street, Brighton, was found lying on a lawn in a nearby estate with both hands badly cut. He told the police that he was a chauffeur, and after some questioning admitted he was the driver of the Cheney car. It is alleged by the police that the car had been stolen for a "joy ride."

REPORT A NEW INQUIRY ON SWIG SEAT

Charging that Representative Simon Swig of Ward 21, Republican, violated the corrupt practices act by by expending more than $100 for his nomination and election, several members of the Legislature are, it is reported, to file a petition for an investigation with the clerk of the House.

The charges against Swig were investigated recently by three Judges of the Superior Court, who held that he violated the law, but allowed an appeal to the Supreme Court on the question as to whether the law was constitutional. The Supreme Court decreed that the law was not constitutional in that it attempted to delegate to the Supreme Court the determination of certain qualifications for membership in the Legislature, whereas, under the constitution, the Legislature is the supreme judge of its own membership.

PHYLLIS SEARS GOES UNDER THE KNIFE

Miss Phyllis Sears, whose engagement to Bayard Tuckerman, horseman and clubman, was recently announced, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed at her home in Commonwealth avenue.

Her condition today was announced by Dr. Hugh Williams as so satisfactory that her recovery is almost certain to be complete long before June 29, the date set for her wedding.

BIG FIRE RAGES IN RALEIGH, N. C.

Raleigh, N. C., May 2.—Fire is sweeping the business district of Raleigh. The flames originated in a stable and quickly spread. The loss will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. The residential district is endangered.

Billy Sunday's Punch Tickles Jess Willard

Kansas City, May 2.—Billy Sunday, who never lost a decision in his battles with the Devil, and Jess Willard, champion pugilist of the world, met here. "Gee, but you're big, Jess," said Sunday, looking up at Willard, "but I believe I could last one round with you."

Willard smiled. "Hit me in the stomach, Billy," he challenged. "Hit me as hard as you can."

Sunday hesitated.

"I can hit a pretty hard blow, Jess," said he. "Go on, hit me," persisted the gigantic Kansan, and Sunday hit—as hard a blow as he could.

Willard just laughed.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Advertisement.

Relief in Pulmonary or Throat Troubles depends largely on the sufferer's ability to upbuild a weakened system, and thus hasten a return of normal body functions.

In this effort much depends on fresh air—night and day—and rest and good food. The patient should refrain from work that overtaxes, and all sanitary precautions should be taken. These commonsense measures do not always achieve the desired results unless aided by proper medication.

It is here that Eckman's Alterative has evidenced its worth, for in many cases it has effected lasting benefit. And often such troubles seem to yield to it.

In no case is its use attended with possible harm, since it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs.

NEGRO HOLDS UP GIRL ON HER DOORSTEP

A search is being conducted today by the Boston police, particularly in the South End and Roxbury, for a negro who held up Marian Dickie, twenty, at the point of a revolver at the doorway of her home early today. the doorway of her home on Linden avenue, Roxbury, early today.

The girl's screams attracted the attention of her mother and neighbors. Her mother ran from her house, and on seeing her the man took to his heels. Although pursued for a short distance he was able to make his escape.

The girl described her assailant as being about twenty-five, five feet seven and weighing 140 pounds. She said that he was a light-colored negro and was dressed in dark clothes and a derby hat. The description of the man in height, build and clothing tallies almost exactly with the man who held and shot Miss Minnie Walsh in her home at No. 88 West Newton street, an hour and a half later, except that Miss Walsh did not state that the man who attempted to rob her was colored.

ARREST TWO BOYS FOR ROXBURY THEFT

Two young men were taken from their beds in different parts of the city by Police Inspectors Patterson and Egan early today on charges of having broken into James J. De Bogan's house at No. 15 Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury, last Sunday night, and having stolen $1,000 worth of jewelry and clothing. The double arrest gave the first news of the housebreaking.

One of the youths, Hartwell I. Atwood, twenty years old, was taken at his home on Elm Hill Park, not far from the De Bogan house.

The other prisoner, John F. Holen, twenty years, of No. 23 Dale street, Roxbury, was found in a room on Northampton street, South End.

GIVEN $8,800 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

A verdict of $8,800 was awarded today in the Superior Court at East Cambridge to Mrs. Eva L. B. Rhodes of Framingham in her suit against the New York Central for the death of her husband, Justin W. Rhodes, a conductor. Rhodes was inspecting a car near the Boylston street bridge December 24, 1912, when a train backed down on him.

METHODISTS HIT CHILD LABOR

By FRANK J. MARKEY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 2.—The great legislative body of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in general conference here today, heard the keynote address, prepared by the board of bishops and accepted as the official statement of Methodism on all important problems. It was a tri-fold message relating to theological, social and administrative questions.

The address was read by Bishop John W. Hamilton of Boston. He said that, notwithstanding the loss of half a million members when the Methodist Episcopal Church South was organized in 1845, there has been a steady increase in membership of nearly 400,000 each quadrennium. Touching on the world-wide war the official utterance stated:

"The occasion requires the keenest discernment and most tolerant appreciation of the opinions and feelings in the several belligerent nations."

The work of the church is being carried all over the world.

The official statement declared that Methodism stands unreservedly against all forms of child labor and recorded itself in favor of the Keating-Owen bill. The saloon and Mormonism are condemned at great length.

Contrary to general expectations, the amusement question did not receive specific attention. The second day of the conference was opened with a devotional service. The business session began a half-hour later. Tonight there will be a reception of fraternal delegates representing British Wsleyan conferences and the Mthodist Church of Canada.

LYNN SOCIETY FOLK IN MAY BREAKFAST

Leading society women were in charge of tables at the twenty-third annual May breakfast given from 4:30 to 8 a. m. today at the Lynn State Armory, to raise funds for the Lynn Associated Charities. Four thousand were served. Women in charge will direct tonight's community dance for the same cause.

The following women are on the committee: Alice M. Chase, Annie L. Newhall, Evelyn S. Moody, Mrs. G. H. Williams, Mrs. J. W. Harding, Mrs. Nellie Sawtell, Mrs. A. A. Burton, Mrs. G. H. Fuller, Mrs. H. M. Lockwood, Mrs. Georgianna L. Goldthwaite, Mrs. Davis Day, Mrs. Edgar W. Jones, Mrs. F. A. Bond, Mrs. Josephine Hastings, Mrs. J. J. McKeney and Mrs. J. J. Morgan.

OFFICER BATTLES WITH MAN IN DARK

Patrolman Norman A. Phillips of the Lynn police force was severely injured in a terrific fight with David Brothers, colored, of Central avenue, which took place in a dark, partly demolished house on Summer street, Lynn.

Complaints that a man was acting indecently in the house were received at police headquarters and Patrolman Phillips found Brothers in the house and attempted to arrest him. The colored man succeeded in knocking the officer down between two doorposts, kicking him severely. When the officer regained his feet he brought Brothers into submission only after using his club considerably. A large crowd collected.

Prisoner Loses Habeas Corpus Freedom Plea

F. V. Mapes, serving a term of two and a half to three years in the State prison for escaping from the Lowell jail, where he was serving a two-year term for polygamy, today petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus to compel Warden Allen to release him.

Mapes declared he was being held in violation of his constitutional rights, and that he had been made the victim of prejudice on the part of the court and District Attorney. He charged the police with concealing evidence that might help a defendant.

Judge De Courcy dismissed the petition. The fact that Mapes should attempt such a proceeding with his term almost ended surprised officials.

COMMITTEE IS OPPOSED TO PHONE PROBE

With two members absent, the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs, in executive session, today unanimously voted against the recommendation of the Public Service Commission for an investigation of telephone rates and service. The absent members will be polled to see how they stand.

Chairman Fred J. Macleod of the Public Service Commission, at a hearing before the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, said the committee owed it to the citizens to investigate telephone rates and service as there had been no public inquiry since the telephone system was installed.

WELLESLEY MAN ACCUSED OF FRAUD

Lewis Feldberg of Wellesley was arrested by Inspector Conway today on a charge of obtaining property under false pretences by getting $32.10 worth of goods charged at the Brown Durrell Co., a wholesale dry goods store, after making misleading statements as to his credit.

FIVE HURT AS AUTO RUNS OFF ROAD

A Taunton automobile containing five men on their way to Boston left the highway on a double-S curve in the road at Braintree Highlands today, plunged down a twelve-foot embankment, threw out the five occupants and crashed into a clump of woods at the foot of the embankment.

The machine was wrecked. Two men were rendered unconscious and the other three were so dazed they could hardly give an account of the accident to the first person who happened along. This was Michael J. Sullivan, a milk wagon driver, who called the Braintree police.

The victims and their injuries were:

John G. Sharkey, driver of the car, unconscious, with lacerated right knee and cuts on forehead.

Clarence L. Galligan, head and right cheek cut, unconscious.

Stephen J. Potter, scalp cut, nose crushed, left shoulder sprained.

Edward Rahamans, cuts and bruises.

Daniel A. Smith, shaken up and bruised.

SOCIETY

Miss Mildred Bradley will give an illustrated talk called "Glimpses of Royalty," at the Tuileries tonight. The lecture is for the benefit of the Children's Gardens and is under the auspices of the Woman's Municipal League.

The patronesses are: Mrs. Samuel McCall, Mrs. J. T. Bowlker, Mrs. Thomas Sherwin, Mrs. Robert Bradley, Mrs. Edward Bayley, Mrs. Leverett Bradley, Mrs. Lewis A. Crossett, Mrs. Margaret Deland, Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. J. L. Grandin, Jr., Mrs. George B. Hugo, Mrs. William E. Murdock, Mrs. Arthur Perry, Mrs. Henry H. Proctor, Mrs. R. H. Stearns, Jr., Miss C. A. Spring and Mrs. Andrew Webster.

o o o

The second performance of "Hello Frisco" was given this afternoon by the Vincent Club at the Wilbur Theatre. Mrs. Manfred Bowditch, Miss Eleanor Wheeler, Miss Katharine Doty and Miss Rosamond Eliot made a sensational hit in their presentation of the Watteau ballet. Their dancing, together with the exquisite costumes of fluffy white tarleton with bouffant pannier overdresses and white wigs, made a wonderful picture.

o o o

Mr. and Otis Norcross of No. 249 Marlboro street and Miss May Plympton, who makes her home with them, are expected home tonight from New York, where they have been visiting for the past week.

o o o

The Folk Lore Society will meet tonight at the Garo Studio on Boylston street. The members will elect officers for the ensuing year and later a supper will be served.

POLICE ARREST MAN WHO WORE 'ELMIRA HAT'

Police Inspector Hart spied an Elmira hat at the corner of Washington and Oak streets.

An Elmira hat is a light-colored soft hat, such as is given to all prisoners released from Elmira, N. Y. penitentiary. To a police inspector it is a sign.

The hat was on the head of a young chap—about twenty-two or so—who carried an old suit case. From one end of the suitcase there stuck out a piece of silk that looked as though it might be part of a dress.

The Elmira hat party had on a [illegible] coat, whose tails seemed to be [illegible]. Altogether the outfit interested the inspector.

Hart trailed the chap to a South End hotel and arrested him on suspicion. In the suitcase Hart said he found jewels and clothing. In the coattail pockets were two revolvers, loaded.

At police headquarters, the police found, they said, that the jewels and clothing in the suitcase matched the description of goods stolen from the home of Joseph LaMoth at No. 237 Eagle street in Fall River.

They said, too, that the prisoner is Joseph Montpelier, who recently completed an eighteen months term at Elmira.

Tyler Against Champs ◆◆◆ Braves Want the Series

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

GEORGE TYLER'S work in the "bull pen" was of brief duration. He was sent down there in front of the bleachers to get ready should Rudolph lose his grip. This was prompted by the desire of the Miracle Man to get that game. As Rudolph didn't blow up, "Lefty" wasn't needed, so he may be the choice for today's conflict with the champions of the National League.

Rudolph gave about as fine an exhibition of pitching himself out of a hole as has been seen this or any other season. Mayer, the champions' twirler, did about the same thing, only he didn't last as did "Fordham Dick."

When Rudolph looks the weakest he is about the most effective, and his teammates were not in the least disturbed when two hits and a pass had filled up the bases. The Braves got out of the hole with only one run scored, and thereafter there wasn't a chance to cross the plate until Duke Whitted slammed out his two-bagger (thanks to the mud), and scored on two infield plays.

The Braves were handed their first run due to the lack of control of Mayer, who passed three men after Maranville had got on through Luderus' error in juggling a thrown ball. But here is where Mayer proved to have plenty of sand. He refused to quit, with the bases filled and none out, the run forced in being all the Braves got in that session, a performance deserving of much credit. However, later the Miracle Men got two hits for one run and four hits in a row for three, which sent Mayer to the bench.

DEMAREE THE CHOICE.

It is hardly possible that Alexander will be sent in again in this series, which makes it look like the choice of Demaree for the afternoon's game. With any choice at all the Braves will find the going hard enough, for the champions are playing the game for all there is in it, and getting results. Their failure to win yesterday may be checked off as being due to Rudolph's masterly work on the mound after the first inning.

Tyler had a good day against the Giants and should prove effective against the Phillies. The day should be reasonably warm, which is an added help to Lefty, who can work better in warm weather.

I presume Compton's hitting is keeping him in the lineup for the Braves. Snodgrass is by far the better fielder, and as Magee was not in uniform yesterday it is perhaps a matter of some days before he will be back in the game. Strange things are pulled in baseball, which go to prove that figures, especially batting averages, do not cut any marked degree of "ice" when it comes to a pinch. For instance, Compton hit for 417 last week, and he was taken out to let Fitzpatrick bat for him in the eighth. Fitzpatrick has yet to create a batting average.

EVERS GOING GOOD.

Johnny Evers is stepping off with the right foot this week. His three hits on Saturday gave him a good added start and he punched out a couple to keep his hand in. Evers looks to be on the road to a long string of hits. There is one thing certain, the opposing pitcher has to pitch to him, and his eye is as keen for the ball he likes as it ever was.

The Champions are aggressive and do not mince words with the umpires. Burns was chased for telling Rigler what he thought of his judgment on balls and strikes, and then Manager Moran became the second leader sent from the field, objecting to the pass given Smith in the eighth.

PAT SORE.

I imagine Pat must have been a little sore for having let Mayer stay in the game as long as he did. Still, Mayer gave every indication of control and plenty of stuff until the blow-off came in the fifth.

So far on the home field Rabbit has been the only player put out of the game and there was plenty of life to the team, which proves that the men can play a snappy, aggressive article of ball without being in danger of fine or banishment or both.

The games today and tomorrow are the last in the present home stay of the Braves. They leave for their trip Wednesday night.

COLLEGE TWIRLER OF NOTE FOR RED SOX

Captain Frank O'Connor, pitcher of the Manhattan College baseball team, probably will sign with the Boston American League Club at the close of school in June. Bill Carrigan sent him a flattering offer yesterday and O'Connor said he probably would accept. Previous to the Red Sox proposition the Manhattan College box artist had received several inducements from Western clubs.

O'Connor has played with the varsity nine four years. During that time he has pitched several no hit and one hit games. He is a right hander with terrific speed and splendid control. In his three games this year he has struck out thirty-four batters, an average of 11 1-3 to a game.

BRICKLEY STARTS GRID. WORK AT B. C.

Charlie Brickley, Boston College's new football coach, called out the football men for Spring practice yesterday afternoon. Over thirty men turned out and more are expected by the end of the week. Brickley put the candidates at work falling on the ball, catching punts and practicing quick starts. A long run ended the first day's work.

GRIFFITH OUT FOR THIRD

Senators Want to Remain at Top of Heap—Boehling and Shore Today—Barry Off Form.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—With two games of the present series snugly tucked away, Manager Griffith is out for the third today, and to accomplish that task he contemplates shooting Joe Boehling into the breech. Southpaw Harry Harper having had a comfortable afternoon of it with the Sox yesterday, Griff feels another portsider can do equally as well today. Meanwhile Boss Bill Carrigan is in anything but a pleasant frame of mind. He doesn't relish having a pair of his best bets roughly handled by the local entrants, and today long Ernie Shore will be assigned the task of stopping the ambitious Senators. Not in some moons have the Washington entrants been at the top of the heap so long after the season's opening.

War with Mexico, or even with Germany, has been relegated to the back ranks for the time being. All that the clerks, Congressmen, Senators and even secretaries find time to discuss at night is the remarkable work of the Senators in twice hanging the Indian sign on the Champions of the World.

BARRY OUT OF FORM.

Folks are wondering what is wrong with Jack Barry, the clever second sacker, to whose ability much of the credit for the Red Sox triumph last year is due. Twice yesterday Jack started double plays backward and that would indicate that he is not in the best of health at the present time. Barry is usually very clear headed and almost invariably does the right thing at the right time. Consequently the acts of yesterday are occasioning no end of surprise.

Yesterday's matinee was a corker up to the last half of the eighth inning, so far as the hopes of the Boston boys were concerned. "Babe" Ruth was traveling on high and the Red Sox were showing the way, 3-2.

Then Ruth lost his control; "Dutch" Leonard was pressed into breach, but Henry jarred the renowned left-hander with a clean punch, with the bags packed, and when Henriksen allowed the ball to get away from him, everybody scored and the game was over.

THREE WALKS; THREE RUNS.

Milan was first up in the fatal eighth. He boosted high to Barry. Rondeau was slipped a free ticket by Ruth. Williams went up for Judge and Alvah was also passed. Morgan likewise received a gift and thus it was the pillows were packed.

At this juncture Ruth and Agnew gave way to Leonard and Thomas, or, to be exact, Thomas went behind the bat after Ruth issued his second bit of free transporation. Henry was the batter and Amherst's old baseball star smacked one cleanly to left. Henriksen gave it an obliging boot and the three runners sped home, while Henry pulled up at second.

Leonard wound up by striking out McBride and Harper, but the damage had already been done, as all that happened in the Red Sox's section of the final inning was a walk Carrigan, swinging for Leonard, received, after Barry and Thomas expired, and Henriksen, the luckless fall-guy, ended it all by fouling out to Hero Henry.

Ruth's wildness also hurt in the second canto when the Nationals registered their first two runs. "Babe" passed Rondeau, first up. Judge sacrificed the Frenchman along to second and Morgan sent him home on a one-spot to left. Morgan made second on Lewis' late throw home and came in when McBride belted safely.

RUTH SENDS TWO OVER.

Harper applied the brush in all but the fourth. Lewis opened that session with a single. Gardner beat out a slow roller to Judge, and Barry's safety to left filled the bases. Agnew was hit by a pitched ball, forcing Lewis over, and Ruth's clean drive to centre tallied Gardner and Barry. "Babe" allowed himself to be caught in a run-up, and it put the kibosh on a rally which might have netted more than the three counters.

Wollaston Cup Won by Jesse Guilford

Jesse Guilford, thanks to playing sterling golf, is the winner of the Wollaston cup, New England's first prize for the 1916 season. Guilford played A. H. Goodale in the finals, and though hard pressed throughout, won out, 2 and 1.

Goodale was perhaps lucky not to lose the match at the fourteenth hole, where Guilford lost his ball, but the shot was a bad one, and Guilford deserved to lose the hole. Goodale's failure to hold a six-foot putt for a two on the sixteenth really settled the match.

JOEY CONNOLLY CLAIMED BY REDS

CINCINNATI, May 2.—Outfielder Joey Connolly has been landed from the Boston Braves by Manager Herzog along with Pitcher Elmer Knetzer.

That Connolly is coming West at once, so as to be in the Reds' stand against the Eastern teams, is expected by Herzog, as he has turned Outfielder Kenneth Williams back to the Spokane (Northwestern League) club.

The Reds are sadly in need of an outfielder and Connolly is being counted upon becoming a regular.

Harvard on With Georgetown in Return Game

Georgetown, defeated by Boston College yesterday, faces Harvard on Soldiers Field this afternoon.

The visitors have saved their prize twirler for the Crimson—Murray, who defeated Yale last week, 3-1—and Coach John D. O'Reilly is confident his charge will come through a winner.

Mahan will work for Harvard. It will be the first time the big fellow has mounted the slab in nearly two weeks, his last start being against Catholic University, Harvard's only loss this Spring, on the Southern trip.

Judd Beal has the call for third base for Harvard and Bothfeld will start at short in place of Reed.

Dual Meet at Tech Field

Bowdoin Comes Friday

THE track team of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will meet that of Bowdoin College on Friday at Technology Field, Cambridge. Technology expects to win the greater number of points in the sprints, runs, hurdles and pole vault. It is considered an even thing in the high and broad jumps and the pole vault. Bowdoin is strong in the hammer throw, discus and shotput. Technology hopes for eleven first places.

The interclass games at the institute last Saturday just about put the athletes in the right fettle, and all are hoping for some sunshine and a dry track.

Doon, O'Hara, Russert, Kwan and Guething will run the dashes for Technology. Pirnie and Savage are Bowdoin's most likely entrants.

In the quarter and half-mile runs, Guething, Mead, Reni, Murphy, Brook, Brown, Hamilton and Stephens will be Technology's hopes. Bowdoin will start Turner, Crosby and Wymap.

The mile and two-mile events will have the following Technology starters: Brown, Herzog, Stephens, Mo-Carten, Halfacre, Graf, McVicker and Parker. Bowdoin is sending Irving, Turner and Fillmore into these races.

Technology's hurdlers entered in the 120-yard high and 220 low hurdles are Newall, Scranton, Goeddine, Rogal, Jackson, Van Kirk and Collier. The Bowdoin entries are Webber, Leighton and White.

Sullivan, Collier, Lockwood and Hodgson will be in the high jump for Technology and Fenning and White will perform for Bowdoin.

TECH LOOKING FOR WIN.

Technology is looking forward to a win in the broad jump from among its entries. Reed, Gokey, Collier and Avery. Bowdoin is placing confidence in Hall and White.

The shot-put will be taken care of for Technology by Swain, Benson, Jewett and Stevens. Leadbetter and Stanley will put the missile for Bowdoin.

Technology is not very strong in the hammer throw and Bowdoin is expected to score heavily in this event. The Technology entrants are: Swain, Stevens, Riegel and Gokey. Bowdoin counts on Leadbetter, Colbath and Moulton.

Technology's entries for the discus are: Gokey, Swain, Guething and Sewall. Bowdoin should get the larger number of points in this event with Moulton and Leadbetter, although Gokey may spring a surprise.

Lawrason will be Technology's chief entry in the pole vault. The others are: Wright, Buchanan and Reeve. Sampson, who will be Bowdoin's strongest entry, is expected to give Lawrason a hard tussle for first place.

May Shut Ball Park Because of Strike

PITTSBURGH, May 2.—The street car strike is threatening baseball very seriously here. President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates announced tonight that unless there is a settlement of the strike by tomorrow night he would not open the game at Forbes Field on Wednesday, when the Cubs are scheduled to appear here. He said the first three games at least would be postponed, and if the jitney bus service is in good shape by Saturday they might play the fourth, otherwise they would not.

Indianapolis Race Draws Big Field

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—From eighteen to twenty cars will face the starter's gun in the annual 500-mile Memorial Day race here this year, it was announced today. The entries closed at midnight last night with eighteen names. The management, however, expects several more and will accept entries which bear the postmarks of May 1.

Barney Resta, who was barely nosed out last year by Ralph de Palma, will make another try. He has entered a Peugot. De Palma's name has not been entered yet, but speedway officials believe he will be in line when the race starts.

The cars entered are three Maxwells, three Peugots, three Premiers, two Duesenbergs, three Frontenacs, two Sunbeams, one Cleveland and a Duchesneau special entered by a Kansas city restauranteur of that name.

SOCCER SHOTS

GENERAL ELECTRICS are back again in the scrap for the championship of the Southern division of the District eLague, and must again meet their city rivals, Fosses and Hiltes for the honors.

LYNN FOSSES have won their way to the final round of the State cup and must now wait until the replay of the New Bedford-Fore Rivers 2 to 2 tie game is decided.

* * *

IT IS rumored that there is bad feeling existing between two teams in the State cup series, and that one of them will put obstacles in the way of clearing the series early. That the cup officials will hustle their games along there is no doubt.

* * *

THE Fall River Rovers went down to defeat to the J. P. Coats team in one of the hardest fought games of the season. The goal that gave them the short end came after two hours and a half of play. Five thousand fans paid to see the game, and it can be said that these same people will be out again Saturday rooting for the Rovers.

* * *

IT IS apparent that the Rovers will also have to meet the champion Bethlehem F. C. in the American cup series, the latter team by defeating the Jersey Athletic Club enters the semi-finals in which the Rovers are qualified.

SEEN as a lineman last Saturday at Sullivan square was Jackie Rogers, having just returned from England. A couple of years ago he was one of the regulars of the St. Georges' and known as a high kicker.

* * *

ST. GEORGE'S career in the Winnisimon cup was a very short one. A great exhibition of hard luck was their share in the Charlestown game, just because a victory would have carried it to further honors. Manager Gibson tried out Willey at 5 i. f., but he proved no star.

WELTERS MIX AT ARENA

Triple-A Management Confident Harvey-Beecher Bout Will Prove One of Season's Gala Hits.

ARMORY A. A. PROGRAM.

Johnny Harvey, New York, vs. Willie Beecher, New York, ten rounds, catch-weights.

Howard McHue, Cambridge, vs. Johnny Noonan, Dorchester, eight rounds.

Johnny Morris vs. Frankie Simmons, six rounds.

Willie Shea vs. Johnny O'Brien, six rounds.

Referees—Phil Powers and Maffitt Flaherty.

Starting time—6 p. m.

THE Armory A. A. management is confident tonight's melee at the Arena, which brings together Johnny Harvey and Willie Beecher, a pair of New York heavy lightweights, or light welters, whichever way one wants to class them, will prove one of the happiest hits of the entire season.

Harvey delivered in handsome style in his lone Boston start. That was with Charley White, the efficient Chicago 135-pounder, at the St. Botolph street Casino last Summer. He tore right into White, ran up a wide early lead, only to be "nosed out," to borrow a turf expression, in the windup. While Beecher has never performed here, he is one of pugdom's busiest members, and has stepped to advantage with the best of them in his class.

The best thing about the Harvey-Beecher match, so think Miah Murray, Ivy Lewis & Co., is that the two ringsters rank right together, and unless old Pop Dope gets a solar-plexus wallop, the fans are going to be treated to an slug-bang a twelve-rounder as has been staged in Boston in a long, long time.

MEET AT CATCHWEIGHTS.

Harvey and Beecher are coming in at catchweights. As both boys are experienced, they can be relied upon being at their best at post-time. The Armory A. A. management claims the two boxers are in the pink of condition, and adds that all doubting Thomases are going to be agreeably surprised by the busy bout that is going to follow.

Phil Powers, nee Young Donahue, has been reinstated, it is reported, and will handle the Harvey-Beecher number. The fans can be relied upon extending him the deserved warm welcome when he climbs through the ropes.

POWERS WILL RUN BOUT.

Powers has done uniformly good work in the ring since succeeding the weekly New York importations, "Billy" Roche, "Patsy" Hafey and the like, and is the official the big bulk of the Greater Boston boxing lovers want to see on the job.

"Bald Charley" White is a most capable referee. As for the others—one and all are completely overshadowed by Powers.

* * *

Howard McHue of Cambridge and Johnny Noonan of Dorchester will clash in the semi-final. It should be a slashing good little scrap. In addition there will be the usual two all-rounders.

The popular scale of assessments will again prevail—$1, $1.50 and $2. Next week's windup number brings together Walter Butler of Revere and Frankie Mack of Beachmont.

SIDELIGHTS

BY HERMAN NICKERSON

ONE fair warm day anyway, and May Day also. There seems to be hope for Spring, after all.

* * *

SHERWOOD MAGEE was at the park, but not in uniform. "Cactus" Cravath took part in the batting practice, and Marty McHale and Clyde Engle sat together during the game.

* * *

MANAGER STALLINGS moved Collins up to third place in the batting order, Wilson swinging fourth.

* * *

BURNS kicked on the strikes called by Rigler while at bat in the second, being chased from the park, Adams taking his place. He had one ball called and took one swing, having inherited two strikes from Burns.

* * *

IF Good had caught Maranville's drive in the second it would have been a remarkable play, hence the two-bagger credited to the Rabbit. Johnny Evers delivered, as expected. He certainly hit that one on the nose.

* * *

WHEN Paskert lifted a pop fly for the third out in the third, the wind carried the ball back of second. The Rabbit was running under it, but Evers reached up and got it. The fans missed the belt-line catch of Maranville's.

* * *

A FREAK drive came in Boston's third when Smith, in turning away from what would have been a fourth ball, struck his bat, going on a line to Magee.

RABBIT ran into deep left field and caught a high fly by Luderus in the fourth.

* * *

GOWDY made Mayer duck with his slam in the fourth, which brought up in centrefield. "Hank" tried to steal second, and was out by a few city blocks.

* * *

BANCROFT got a scratch hit in the sixth on one that rolled slowly down the pitcher's path to Rudolph, who made no effort to pick it up. Gowdy was also slow on the play.

* * *

WHITTED was robbed of a home run in the seventh when his drive in between Compton and Whitted stuck in the mud, where it fell. Later Konetchy had a similar experience.

* * *

CAPTAIN EVERS kept up his hitting. He got two in three times at bat. His first single scored the Rabbit, and his second, a scratch, built the first run of the trio that came in the fifth.

* * *

KONETCHY got two hits, as did Bancroft. The Champions' shortstop's second safely was a rank scratch.

RING RESULTS

New Orleans, May 2.—Johnny Daly of New York was knocked out in the eighth round by Willie Wilson of Los Angeles.

Westminster, R. I., May 2.—K. O. Pellis of New London Ct., got the better of a close decision in his 12-round bout with Eddie Flynn of Peatsdy.

Gardner, May 2.—Dave Powers of Malden and Joe Chick of Gloucester boxed ten rounds to a draw.

LEONARD HAS SNAP WITH C. WHITE'S PET

Philadelphia, May 2.—Benny Leonard, the crack New York lightweight, defeated Charley Thomas of this city in a six-round bout here last night. Leonard made a chopping block out of his foe and Thomas lasted the distance wholly on his pluck.

M'COY DEFEATS MOORE.

New York, May 2.—Benny McCoy, the Baltimore bantam, won from Pal Moore of Memphis, in a fast ten-round bout at the Pioneer Sporting Club.

Berry Is to Run Saturday's Meet

ROMEYN BERRY, a Cornell graduate and member of the Intercollegiate Track Association, has been appointed referee of the Harvard-Cornell meet, at Ithaca, Saturday. The indefatigable "Sparrow" Robertson will do the starting.

THE Harvard invaders will leave Boston at 10 o'clock Friday morning for Ithaca.

JOE ROGERS ON BILL TUOHEY IS FRAMING

Joe Rogers, the "American Apollo," will be one of the headliners at the wrestling carnival in Mechanics' Building next Monday night. He is the biggest and probably most perfect athlete ever developed in America, weighing 290 pounds and standing 6 feet 5 inches in height.

Among the other grapplers signed by Promoter Tuohey are Frank Leavitt, the army champion; Karl Lemle, Hevumpaa, the "Fiery Finn"; "Cyclone" Burns and Harry Lemare, while negotiations are under way for Jim Losson, the big Englishman, and other stars of international fame.

Why I Never Married

No. 7—The Woman Who Demanded Too Much in a Husband Tells Her Story

By DOROTHY DIX

"THE reason I never married," said the seventh woman, was because I demanded too much in a husband.

"I was looking for a paragon, and as the countryman said when he saw a hippopotamus for the first time, 'there ain't no such animal.'

"As I look back now on my ardent girlish ideal, with the light of many years' experience of human nature and much knowledge of the world to illuminate my vision, I don't know whether to laugh or to cry, for my purpose was so high and my practice so foolish, and in reaching out after an impossible ideal, I missed all of the nice consolation prizes that I might have had.

"I had many chances to marry—good chances, too, and to marry men to whom for one reason or another I was greatly attracted, and with whom I could have fallen in love if I had permitted myself. But no. In my youthful egotism I had decided that I would marry no man who did not measure up to the standard of perfection that I had erected, and of course no mere mortal man did.

"He couldn't, for my specifications of the kind of a husband that I thought good enough for Me required a composite of the salient characteristics of Paul Swan, Sir Callahad, Mr. Rockefeller, Keats, and John Drew.

HARD REQUIREMENTS

"The man that I married must be handsome, tall, with piercing eyes and a dark mustache. He must have unblemished morals, and yet be a man of the world who knew his way about.

"He must be able to make money, and plenty of it, because I hankered after the flesh pots, but he must also be of a soulful nature and able to quote poetry effectively, and to understand my soul aspirations, and he must have all of the social graces, and wear his clothes like the godlike young creature in the tailor's advertisements.

"That was the kind of a husband that I was looking for, and poor little goose that I was, I didn't know that the feast of life is served a la carte, and that we don't get all of the goodies. We have to make our choice from the menu that fate serves us, and the best we can do is pick out the one thing that we relish most.

"Later on, I discovered that masculine pulchritude and brains seldom go together; that a giant may have the soul of a pigmy, and the heart and mind of a five-foot-four man may be so big they crowd his small body; that a man who occasionally signals off of the straight and narrow path often makes the tenderest and most adorable of husbands, while a model of all the virtues generally is a grinding tyrant at home; that money making and yearning after the whatnots of the what are as incompatible as oil and water.

"That a husband who is a Beau Brummel in his dress spends the clothes allowance of the family on himself instead of his wife, and finally, and above all, that romantic love is an evanescent as the dew on the rose, and that any kind of plain old prosaic love is better than no love at all.

"But like most discoveries that we make for ourselves, my discovery came too late to do me any good. I had let my youth and my opportunities to marry all pass by me while I was seeking for the impossible HE.

A LITTLE TOO LATE

"There was Jack, who was as handsome as young Apollo, but I wouldn't marry him because he was as vain as a peacock, and had nothing but his good looks to recommend him. There was a clergyman who proposed to me, an ascetic, saint-like young fellow, giving himself in a passion of devotion to work in the slums, but I couldn't see myself a preacher's wife, living in smelly tenements, and doing mission work instead of going to teas and balls.

"And Tom, who was born with the Midas touch that turned everything to gold, asked me to share his fortune. But Tom hadn't an interest in the world except business, and the prospect of spending all of my evenings talking to a man who thought that Browning was a new industrial stock, and that the only book with a genuine heart throb in it was a bankbook, didn't appeal to me, so I turned that proposition down.

"On the other hand, there was Alphonse, who was a quivering bunch of artistic and literary sensibilities, who palpitated to every shade of meaning in books, or pictures, or music, but who could never make a living, and whose wife was due to take in boarders and support him.

"And there was Philip, whose ultimate ambition was achieved when he introduced a new figure into a cotillion, or was the first to wear a mauve ribbon on his eyeglasses that exactly matches his silk waistcoat and socks. Somehow I couldn't see myself as the wife of as pifflingg a thing as that, either.

"Now, each one of these men had one of the qualities I desired in a husband, but none had them all, and so in my ignorance and inexperience I kept a watchful waiting for the one to come along who combined all of the virtues in one. But he never did, and that's why I am an old maid.

"If I had to do it over again, with my present experience and knowledge of life, I should simply choose the man who had the virtue I liked best. I wouldn't consider a man's looks or size if I liked the quality of his heart and brains.

"I'd take the money maker and forget the soul stuff if I wanted luxuries, or I'd marry the man who could give me companionship, and hustle up the bread and butter myself, or I'd take my good-natured pounder and not nag him about falling off of the water wagon, or my preacher, and make up my mind to be a saint, too. And I'd be happy with either, for I'd forget the other perfections he hadn't got.

"But I'd know I'd never find a paragon, as I used to think I would, and if I had found a paragon, what would he want with me? And what would I have done with him if I had gotten him? It's only a husband's imperfections that make him bearable."

A Wise Suggestion

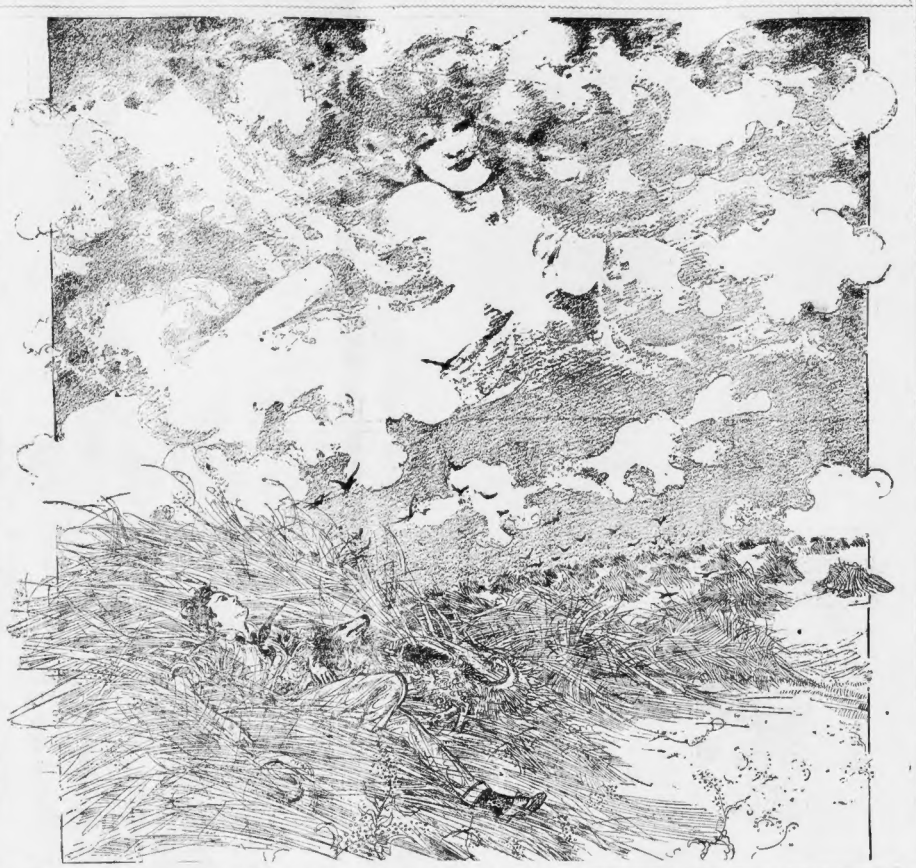

Fair Widow—I've made up my mind that when I die I shall be cremated, as my husband was.

Gallant Captain—Dear lady, please don't talk about such dreadful things! Consider how much better it would be in your case to—er—cross out the C.

How the World Looks to Him

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

THE fuzz naturally-lazy boy lies on his little back in the tall alfalfa. Around his sunburned little face the purple bloom brushes and shakes out perfume that seems to have color, too. The cool green leaves finger his neck and hands. He is a world-away—buried from school and questioning gran'mothers, with the jungleous stalks of the field rising about him like a forest. Just one tiny boy in all the big world of sky and field!

He watches the big lazy white clouds move against the deep blue sky—they shape and hold for an instant—fall away, roll and reshape. Now they are a chariot with big white horses with monstrous manes—they gallop—they gallop!—and now—now they are a great castle that mounts, pile on pile, into a very faery-land, up and up, tier on tier of turrets, with a flag—a remote little flag at the top—why—the tiny boy's eyes have barely reached the top and the rosy hues of the flag before the shadows at the base of the cloud-castle are making a three-headed dog—a funny dog that grins!

The little boy laughs aloud—and off among the trunks of his green forest a little field-mouse stops washing his whiskers to hear this giant chortle! And now the grinning dog is magically shifted away—the cloud pictures form again—this time an islet of land—a range of hills and valleys with a Turkish city on one edge. And the illusion is of a portion of a country cut away from the earth and floating free in the high blue air. "And I am on the underside where I can see the roots of the country," muses the tiny boy; "I'd any one in that little city should think the blue sky was a sea, and step off they'd fall clear to me!" And the little city rolls up—bits of hill and mountain go drifting off like ragged chiffon—the whole fancy falls apart and the soft, white clouds float away to make other dreams. Where is the little boy who has not lain a small atom in a great field of myriad green stalks, buried from the world in its over-topping sweetness, afloat—from the world—in the sky above, and watched the clouds make pictures there?

With a curious feeling of being nearer the sky the roof. They put on glass goggles and sink beneath the water, where the remain submerged for one or two minutes. They feel about among the coral for the fetless fish, which they get with a short thrusting spear. Those methodical fishermen usually make the biggest catches; but the "merry-men" of the water enjoy the best sport.

The Bank of England is the only bank which always issues plainly-printed white paper banknotes, whatever their value. Other countries use printed notes in colors. The Russian notes are printed in all the colors of the rainbow. For the one-color Russian notes, blue, yellow or bright purple inks are most favored. The 100-franc note of France is printed in four colors—blue, pink, black and yellow. German notes are mottled, while those of Austrian banks are extremely vivid in color and are printed in two languages. Mav on one side and German on the other. A Swedish five-crown note is a little yellow thing, while that for 500 crowns resembles a big blue poster, for Swedish notes vary in size according to their value.

But the grown-up boy in the Harvest Time, sagraw! in the fragrant hay and building again in the clouds, finds only a woman's face and form.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Advice to the Lovelorn

HE SEEMS INSINCERE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am deeply in love with a young man two years my senior, who has often told me he loves me, although he has never asked me to marry him. Lately he has not visited me as often as he used to, but I thought it was because of the late hour his firm stops business. I was very much surprised the other night when a close girl friend told me she had seen him in the theatre with another girl. She said it was not the first time, either. She had seen him several times before. Shall I give him up? HELEN S.

MY dear girl, I'm afraid you have not much choice in the matter as to whether or not you give this man up. It looks a little as if he had anticipated your decision by giving you up. And, however much it grieves her at the time, any girl who loses the interest of a man who is fickle and disloyal is fortunate. This man does not seem to have treated you very well, and if it is in his nature to act this way, you are rather lucky to have escaped marrying the man who probably would have been no more considerate of his wife's feelings than he has been of his sweetheart's. When an honorable man tells a girl that he loves her he generally backs it up by a proposal of marriage. Just forget this young man and try to interest yourself in more loyal friends.

DON'T TRY TO LOCATE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About three months ago a man came into the office where I am employed as stenographer. I admired him immediately and as an excuse went into my employer's private office while he was talking to him. He looked at me with admiration, and I am sorry to say I couldn't help smiling back at him. As I was leaving the office he spoke to me. I let him walk home with me and he asked me if he could see me often, but I have never seen him since. How can I locate him? D.

YOU are rather fortunate in having the affair terminate as it has. What you did was very bold and to exceedingly bad taste, and you gave the man every reason to suppose that you were the sort of girl for whom he need have no respect. Dismiss all thought of him from your mind and be heartily glad that he is not annoying you with any unpleasant advances.

IT IS OUTRAGEOUS!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Kindly advise me, if it is proper for a girl engaged to be married soon to allow other men to kiss her. FRANK.

IT seems impossible that a sensible young man should ask this question. There is no question of the propriety involved—it is a matter of instinct and decency. When a self-respecting girl loves one man, she would never think of permitting another to make love to her. But circumstances alter cases. If a girl is announcing her engagement and an old friend whom she tells of her happiness kisses her in a brotherly way, that is a simple token with no more personal emotion in it than there might be if the girl friend were to show her congratulations.

In Our Wonderful World

The natives of Rarotonga, one of the islands in the South Pacific Ocean, have a singular method of catching fish in which the whole community takes part. On the shore of the island there are many long, narrow lagoons, each lying between a beach and an outer reef of coral, that usually swarm with fish. The natives choose one of these stretches of shallow water for the fish drive, and close all breaks in the reef by laying nets across them or building up rough barriers with pieces of coral.

When they have done that, six or seven hundred men, women and children wade into one end of the lagoon carrying little plaited fibre bags filled with utu nut. To most places the water is about three feet deep, and nowhere more than four feet; so the natives march along up the lagoon, trailing behind them the bags of utu nut. As this substance is wet it forms a peculiar caseine, which diffuses through the water. The process is called poisoning the lagoon."

Half an hour is allowed for the "poison" to spread, and at the end of that time all the fish are under the influence of the drug and are swimming about in a confused and aimless manner. The natives, armed with long-pronged spears, form a line that reaches from side to side of the lagoon, and march along, shouting, splashing and driving the intoxicated fish before them. When the fish are all collected at the further end of the lagoon the natives begin to cry, "Eh-hu-hu-u-u!" and the barbed spears fly in all directions. The natives are very strong with the spears, and the fish are so sluggish, owing to the effects of the utu nut, that very few of them escape.

Many of the "poisoned" fish seek the shelter of the coral reef and hide in the crevices; and so some of the natives "fish" the reef. They put on glass goggles and sink beneath the water, where the remain submerged for one or two minutes. They feel about among the coral for the fetless fish, which they get with a short thrusting spear. Those methodical fishermen usually make the biggest catches; but the "merry-men" of the water enjoy the best sport.

The Real Secret of Rejuvenating the Face

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The aged, the faded, or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed, in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists (an ounce is sufficient), is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is erased with soap and water. It's the best thing known for Freckles, blackheads, pimples, muth patches, liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

For the deeper wrinkles, an excellent recipe is: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution produces quick and wonderful results.—Advertisement.

Wear your loveliest silk blouse often—you, yourself, can easily freshen it!

Won't Turn Silks Yellow!

Don't think that each time a silk blouse is laundered, it must turn yellower and yellower!

Lux will launder it perfectly—it will launder the daintiest, filmiest materials—chiffon cloth! Georgette crepe! crepe de chine! and keep them as white as when new.

Why Silks Turn Yellow

Authorities on silk say that the action of Alkali on silk makes it acquire a yellow color. They also say that the fiber itself is affected by Alkali. When the Alkali is combined with hot water, and the fabric rubbed, the fiber is ruined.

Lux will keep any silk blouse white, and without rubbing! Lux has absolutely no free Alkali; cleanses wonderfully with lukewarm water, and without rubbing. So thoroughly is Lux dissolved, that not a flake of the soap remains in the garment to discolor it, but every particle of it is quickly rinsed out. Lux won't harm anything that pure water alone will not injure.

For silk, always use Lux and lukewarm water. Never rub and always rinse in lukewarm or cold water. When wet, stretch into original shape and press.

Like Nothing You Have Ever Seen Before

Lux is not an ordinary soap, nor a chipped soap, or soap powder, but pure essence of soap in transparent flakes. Now on sale at your grocer's package today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

SEE OWNERSHIP BY PUBLIC AS R.R. CURE

Charles F. Adams, 2d, the Boston financier and sportsman, declared to the Railroad Committee at the State House today that public ownership offers one of the two solutions of the railroad problem in this country.

The other solution, he said, will be to provide means by which railroads can secure capital at the best rates.

"I personally, do not believe in public ownership, but unless you provide the latter means, public ownership offers the only other solution," Mr Adams frankly stated.

Mr. Adams, George Von L. Meyer, Jerome Jones and Francis Peabody appeared before the committee in opposition to the recommendation of th Public Service Commission in compel the New Haven Railroad to divest itself of its real estate, street railway, gas and other holdings that are not essential to a railroad corporation.

President Howard Elliott, who previously opposed the recommendation, was present, and Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman represented the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Meyer introduced himself as chairman of the old stockholders' protective committee, which, he said, forced out Charles S. Mellen as President.

OPPOSES TIME LIMIT.

"Let the present administration work out the problems of the New Haven road," said Mr. Meyer. "If you set a time limit upon the sale of the securities now held by the New Haven they can be sold only at a loss. Continuous legislation doesn't make a market for securities. I agree with the commission, however, that the New Haven should stick to the business of being a railroad."

Senator Hobbs reminded Mr Meyer that the Public Service Commission's bill provides that it would not become operative until accepted by the New Haven.

"The bill, as I understand it," said Mr. Adams, "provides that the New Haven may hold certain of its railroad securities and for that privilege shall dispose of other properties. The question is, 'Is the price demanded to be in the public interest?' I believe that to put a time limit on the sale of the securities will inevitably result in a loss to the road."

General Peabody said that he appeared in behalf of trustees "who are long-suffering stockholders in the New Haven." Many of them, he said, bought New Haven stock when it was quoted as high as $206.

"They are unwilling to appear here," he said, "because they don't like to make their wounds public. They feel it would be a reflection upon their judgment."

The Public Service Commission treated the matter of New Haven's capital expenditures in a "calm, clear, temperate" way, he said, but in some respects the report was unwise.

"GUILTY HAVE ESCAPED."

Commissioner Eastman, he said, evidently had entered the matter with the idea of "preventing the New Haven from putting anything over on the public."

"But if you force the New Haven to sell its stocks, bonds and notes within a stated time, you will be driving the road into the hands of the junk dealer, the scavenger and the bargainer," he said. "It would be utter folly to compel the New Haven to dispose of its Park square property at this time.

"The history of the New Haven is not likely to repeat itself. We must have confidence in the new management. They are not responsible for the road's condition. If any were guilty the guilty have escaped."

INSPECT SOMERVILLE SITES FOR SUNDAY

Two sites offered by the city of Somerville for the erection of the Billy Sunday tabernacle were inspected today by former Mayor William E. Blodgett of Woburn, chairman of the Billy Sunday tabernacle building committee.

Chairman Blodgett expressed himself as favorably impressed with a lot lying between Broadway and Mystic avenue, East Somerville, about three minutes from the Sullivan square terminal and accessible by cars on both Broadway and Mystic avenue.

The other proposed site visited was the old Y. M. C. A. grounds on Washington street, five minutes' walk from the carline in Union square.

GRANT LICENSE TO SHEPARD NORWELL

The Boston Licensing Board today rescinded its edict of Saturday and decided not only to renew the victualler license of the Shepard Norwell Company's restaurant "Colonial" on Tremont street, but to permit dancing there.

Under the board's new order, dancing will be allowed on the sixth floor, provided no food is served at the time. The dancing period will be from 3 to 8 p. m. The company will be permitted to serve patrons with tea from 3 to 5:45 and dinner from 5:30 until 8 o'clock on the seventh floor, known as the "Garden Room."

The change affords enlarged dancing space and is agreeable to all concerned.

CARMEN AGAIN GO OVER SCHEDULE

An extension of time has been granted to the executive committee of the Carmen's Union to go over the new schedule of working conditions with officials of the Boston Elevated Company. It was expected that the agreement would be signed by the company and go into effect yesterday, but there has been a hitch in the matter which it is believed will be adjusted satisfactorily to both sides.

Still they come—dozens of entries rushing in on every mail, all hoping for one of the AMERICAN Best Baby prizes.

Photographs which are sent to the Best Baby Editor inspire the belief that there are as many fine fish in the sea as out of it. In other words, all of the perfect babies are not yet registered, as they should be.

Some of these photographs are snap shots taken in the yard on a sunshiny day, or at the breakfast table. Others come from the studio, with the babies dressed in their finest.

Photographs will be of real assistance to the judges, especially if the babies are nude, giving a view of limbs, size of body and symmetry of outline.

Already some parents have received their second blanks to be filled out under the direction of physicians or nurses. These are returning, most of them carefully and satisfactorily done. It is a pleasure to find that the first eliminations are not as numerous as was thought would be the case.

Nearly all the entrants show good growth, healthy development and intelligence. A common fault is fatness. A large number of babies carry too much flesh to be called absolutely perfect.

The judges will know exactly how big a baby should be, and babies will be eliminated on a scientific basis.

But four more days remain in which to enter your baby. After midnight Saturday no entry will be considered, and the Baby Editor will set to work preparing for the judges.

It may take a week or more to decide, and others should be patient.

TRUTH, JUSTICE BOSTON AMERICAN EDITORIAL PAGE PUBLIC SERVICE

Tuesday, May 2, 1916

When Is a Man a Man "for a' That" in Our American Republic?

Are Mr. Brandeis' Corporation Enemies Using Women to Strike Him with a "Society" Club?

IT is reported from Washington that the corporation, stand-pat interests, which are opposing the confirmation of Mr. Brandeis' appointment on the Supreme Court of the United States, have resorted to the assistance of a class of women in Washington known as "society women."

Perhaps they have not enlisted the services of all the so-called society women in the city, but there is a very substantial report that they have conscripted a considerable number of the women of this class in an irregular, guerilla warfare against Mr. Brandeis.

Those who know the history of the selfish special interests in all nations and in all periods will not be surprised that they now make use of women. They have done so before on occasions in this country, but more often abroad. It is characteristic of those composing the selfish, money-mad class in any community not to scruple concerning the means they employ to gain their end. Neither pride, nor patriotism, nor truth, nor the spirit of fair play governs the rules of the game which THEY play. They are always willing to stoop to conquer. They are always willing to take any means to their end, though their end be neither "their country's, their God's, nor Truth's." Nothing restrains them except the fear of failure. Knowing this, it may readily be assumed that they are opposing Mr. Brandeis with a certain class of women, if it is found that this means of opposition is at all likely to be effective.

Everybody must decide for himself whether the new method of attack is likely to produce results. The story goes that some of these women have been incited to make general talk in Washington about the social position which Mr. Brandeis' wife would occupy if Mr. Brandeis became a member of the Supreme Court. Our people may be surprised perhaps to learn that in Washington "that thing of laughter, fleers and jeers, which is American aristocracy," has set itself up in the form of a very hard and fast rule of social precedence. The wives of the people's servants at Washington assume the social ranks of their husbands. Therefore, the wife of a member of the Supreme Court takes precedence socially at the functions of society in Washington over the wives of a Senator.

The Senators have the power to confirm or reject Mr. Brandeis. Thus the question arises, whether they will confirm a Jew on the Supreme Court bench, and therefore give social precedence to a Jewess over their own wives? It happens, probably not by accident, that Mrs. Brandeis is quite the intellectual equal of her husband; that she is a profoundly cultured woman who shares her husband's interest in those public concerns which has caused him to be known as the "attorney for the people." She is his intellectual partner, a thing which cannot be said of all the wives of all the Senators. But she is a JEWESS.

It may seem incredible to the country at large that even women should deem it proper to consider a man's qualifications for a great public office, like a place on the Supreme Court, to be dependent upon his social acceptability or that of his family. Yet it is unquestionably true that there has grown up in Washington a very large class of women, perfectly honest and sincere, who believe that the high officials in Washington are good, bad or indifferent as they and their families measure up to the social requirements. It is well known that important lobby work is done in Congress through the social connections.

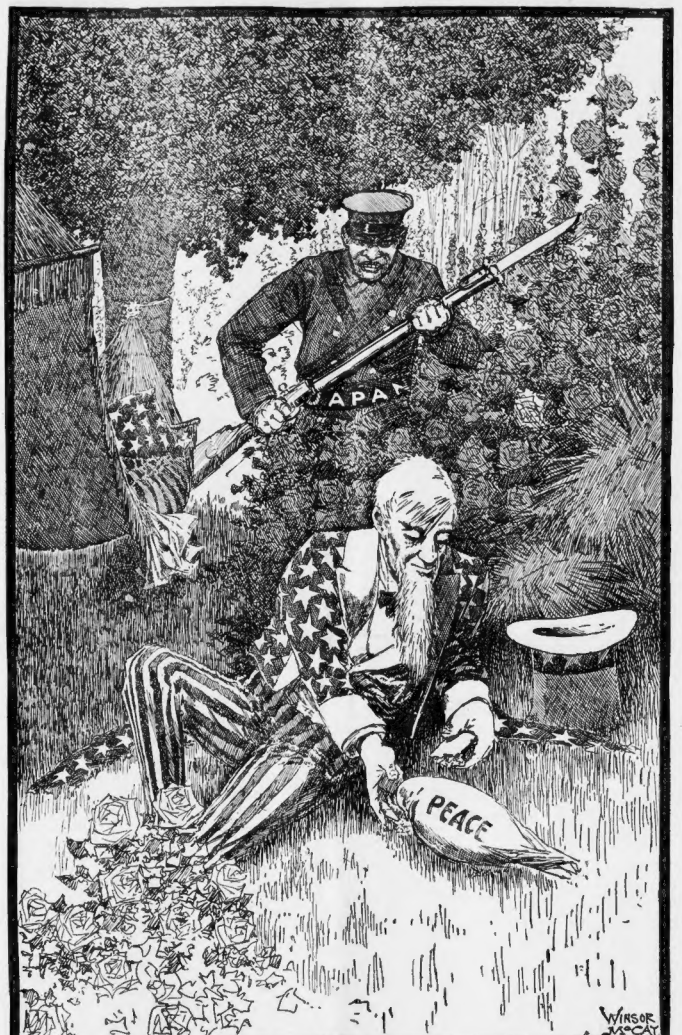

Therefore, we can imagine these women industriously affecting a horror that a Jew should be placed in a position where he can give his wife, however cultured and refined, social precedence over the wives of the Senators. It is easy to imagine the effect this scandalous gossip would have upon some kind of senatorial spouses; and it is also easy to imagine what effect this kind of a wife will have upon a certain kind of husband who happens to be a Senator.

Of course, not all the wives of all the Senators would take any such view of Mr. Brandeis' qualifications. Those who love their country certainly would want to believe that even Senators' wives would be above such considerations; and it is also incredible that all the Senators whose wives happen to take this un-American view of public life would be susceptible of their influence. But some of them may be. When a determined, socially ambitious woman takes this miserable view of her husband's duty, when he takes his coffee at breakfast and dinner, there are some Senators who might yield. At any rate, the chance is great enough to make it worth trying, for there are some Senators no better than the class of women who are alleged to be fighting Mr. Brandeis with that peculiarly feminine weapon. The Senate has been called a rich man's club. Many a Senator has bought his way into a place there because it gave him social distinction and public consideration.

In the great world war that is convulsing Europe, on which the destinies of twenty nations hang in the balance, the most pitiful and ignominious failure among all these nations, including Mohammedan Turk, Serbian and Bulgarian peasant, Russian illiterate, and the least civilized peoples of Europe, has been the British army. The failure of the British army has astounded the military men of the world. It has bungled everything it has attempted. The British soldiers are brave and patriotic and their bodies are strong. The ignoble failure lies not with Tommy Atkins, but with his officers, who have alone among all the armies of Europe been allowed to obtain their commissions for financial and social considerations.

It is hard enough for the country to see a man blackguarded because he prefers to exercise his great talents in defence of the PUBLIC interest against the aggressions of the powerful PRIVATE interests. But it becomes an intolerable spectacle when, added to this kind of opposition, is the cheap, caddish, un-American talk concerning social precedence.

A PLEASANT DREAM!

Measles in Young and Old

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART TWO

THE earlier cases of measles are caught and isolated the fewer others they will infect. It has been found, for instance, that in children's hospitals, where a child, brought in for some other disease, has suddenly broken out with the measles, if all the children exposed to him are carefully watched for feverishness, or sneezing, or itching eyes, and also for the little spots on the inside of the lip, they can be isolated soon enough to prevent any new or "secondary" cases developing.

Scarlet fever will also in some cases infect before any clear symptoms of the disease have shown themselves, and the more we know of these two diseases the more important becomes the general rule already laid down in every case of feverish disturbance of health in childhood, to isolate first and decide what the disease is afterward! You will double the little patient's chance of safe recovery without mark or scar, and cut at least in two, if not in four, the risk of spreading the disease to others.

Although measles is essentially and chiefly a disease of childhood, it is by no means to be treated with disrespect by adults. If one is not quite certain of having had it in childhood, it is best to run no risks in the way of coming in contact with it. For although the risk of catching it in adult life is much less, if it is caught, the attack produced may be severe indeed, and it seems to have a greater tendency to be followed by weakness of the eyes, or inflammation of the ears, or bronchitis.

One of the most utter pictures of woe seen by the writer on a trip through the Tennessee mountains was a strapping young mountaineer with blear eyes and tottering gait and head and neck swathed in bandages. He had been sent down to the penitentiary at Atlanta for six months as a "moonshiner" and there had caught the measles, which had burst his eardrums and inflamed all his glands and settled in his joints and made a temporary wreck of him.

Ludicrous as it sounds, small but very troublesome epidemics of measles often break out among young recruits in training camps, especially if they have been brought in from the mountains or remote country districts. So annoying, in fact, did this ridiculous little disease become among the new levies in Europe last year that the army doctors had a special bulletin addressed to the local health authorities in the neighborhood of training camps admonishing them to clean up and isolate all known cases of the disease in the county. Though whether the epidemics were due to the natural and irrepressible affinity between the soldier boy and the nursemaid and her charges, the official bulletins fail to state.

In-Shoots

When a prominent man attempts to sneak off and visit an affinity he often curses fame.

As the patient target of a lot of cheap jokes, the hotel clerk is in some respects like a mule.

The handle of a carpet sweeper looks like a golf stick, but it never appeals to some girls.

When political success never gets beyond the straw ballot stage, better go to work.

Some people seem to make themselves miserable so that they can get more enjoyment in heaven.

The man with a bull voice is not always such a terrible fellow. He may be a hay fever victim.

Glory achieved by getting mad and quitting a fat office is invariably fleeting.

It is seldom that any woman is as beautiful as painted by the society reporter.

War Based on Ignorance

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Says

Education Will Stop It

No Use to Waste Time on Peace Conferences Until Higher Thoughts Drive Greed and Other Evils from the Minds of Men—Much Good Already Accomplished.

HERE is a letter which has just come to hand:

"Dear Lady—This is the cry of a little girl for world peace. I am positive that I have found out the way for humanity. Here is my plan.

"Why doesn't the President, as the representative of America, invite all the belligerents to send envoys to this country to discuss terms by which peace might be brought about? In other words, we should call a conference of belligerents. A conference of neutrals cannot accomplish anything; but a conference of the unfortunate people that are at war, they and they only, can end the war now.

"At this conference of belligerents the President will probably offer his good services. There is a possibility he might bring about an agreement just as Roosevelt did at the treaty of Portsmouth. If the belligerents refuse the invitation, it will, at least, strengthen the position of the United States in her foreign relations.

"Please ask the Congressman of your district to immediately make the following resolution before the House of Representatives: 'Resolved, That the President of the United States invite all the belligerents to send envoys to this country, to discuss terms by which peace can be effected.'

"Sincerely yours,

"JOAN OF ARC."

Paterson, N. J.

The wording of this letter does not sound like a "little girl," but its reasoning does. If there were a tremendous northeaster raging over the seacoast and the President of our United States should call a congress of all the Weather Bureau men of the country to discuss a method of stopping this storm from raging, it would have just about as much effect upon the elements as the plan proposed by this "little girl" on the world cataclysm.

In order that the world might get rid of its worship of greed and lust and power, this war, with all its horrors, came. Just as Christ made Him a whip of cords and drove the money changers from the temple, beating them with His whip, so the Great Creator back of this universe has made a war upon the evil things which were defiling His temple of earth.

Christ did not drive the moneylenders, with their sheep and their oxen and their pigeons, half way down the temple and then stop; He drove them entirely out.

So this war must go on until the evil things are driven out of the minds of men. Christian Samuel Johnson gave a very wonderful address in Pocatello, Idaho, some months ago, in which he said some great and true things. He said:

War Must Go on Until All Evil Things Are Driven Out

"Ignorance of the people invited this war; ignorance of ambition fostered it; ignorance of greed perpetrated it. The people must furnish the armies; the rulers the leadership; the wealth the munitions. No armies, no war; no leadership, no war!

"Ignorance, sin, suffering, sacrifice, service, have their pain, their reward and their transcendence in the Universal Scheme. In the larger scope, the havoc of war has but cleared ground for statelier mansions.

"What war of history did not advance the growth of mankind? The carnage of war built the English nation out of hostile, marauding feudal tribes. War amalgamated the German Empire. War, costly, bitter, created these United States, and war preserved that 'Union.' What loyal American would bargain back?

"While you are recounting the horrors, totalling the millions of maimed and dead and estimating the billions in destruction and devastation, do not forget to give equal consideration to the other side of the ledger.

"Tell the triumph of temperance. For generations we have fought and won and lost trying to put just a county or a State on the 'dry' map. At a stroke of the pen the Czar put all the Russias in the 'dry' column. Can you put in figures the abridgement of time and suffering and sin forced so quickly in drink reform in Germany, France and England?

"Remember the Omnipotent Power, the Omniscient Wisdom, the Divine Purpose that none can stop or stay. Christian precepts must be exemplified between man and man, nation and nation. Man shall become the Son of God in very fact. Does one son refuse to grow up and persist at marbles and fists, the father takes into fellowship and partnership another and more amenable son who shall inherit the paternal estate.

"Many a nation has halted and strayed by the wayside while another has pushed by on to its persistent purpose of the ages. The story has never changed; the unfit eliminate themselves, the fittest survive to a greater opportunity and to image more perfectly 'His Likeness.'

Should Spend Money to Remove the Causes of the War Plague

"The termination of war, like that of the plague, will be attained by study, science, education and brotherhood. Should the avarice of aggressive nations demand self-protection, we should prepare our arms accordingly, but at the same time spend dollar for dollar to cure the causes of the war plague.

"Education is the ounce of prevention, the Permanent Preparedness. Our government spends millions annually investigating and disseminating facts about farming and trade and manufacture and health; why should not the government spend the price of a battleship educating the people about the 'causes' and 'effects' of war and of its transcendence? Probably a similar peace propaganda among the common people of Germany, France and England would have made impossible that daily billion dollar catastrophe."

Let the "little girl" read these great and true words and ponder over them. She must get the larger view and look beyond the death list to understand just why and how this war would be, and just how and in what way future wars can be prevented. A Greater Power than that of the President of the United States has charge of the entire affair. It must be left for Him to settle.

That Eastern Poet

By William F. Kirk

"DON'T read me none o' your po'try!" said my Arizona friend. "Don't read me none o' them verses, 'bout the willows that sigh and bend!

We've been good pals together, and I reckon we'll allers be,
But keep on sendin' your po'try East, and don't flash none on me!
I'm kind o' leery o' poets now, and have been since the day
Young D. McMasters O'Reilly took a notion to go away."

"This D. McMasters O'Reilly was a poet jest like you,
Only you go to the barber—a stunt he would never do.
O'Reilly was too artistic to make any kind o' show;
The girls all called him a geenyus, but he looked more like a 'bo.
I can see him now at the table, as sorrowful as a hearse,
With ten young whiskers sproutin' out each time that he'd start a verse.

"He said that the joy o' livin' was not in the gaudy show
That marked the birds in the sky above and the peacock down below.
But at last, when I loaned him fifty, which would buy a suit for a prince,
He faded away with the greenbacks—and I never seen him since.
I wouldn't have cared if he'd bought a suit accordin' to my idee,
But poets is funny pertaters," said Phoenix Phil to me.
